SUMMER HEAT BAKES EAST AS RECORDS FALL

North Atlantic Seaboard Sees Mercury Shoot Close to 100.

ONE DEATH CHARGED TO BALTIMORE WAVE

Five Prostrations Also Noted in Hottest City Report.

HEAVY SNOW FALLS IN WESTERN STATES

Relief by Thunderstorms -Promised for Today by Weather Bureau.

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—The North Atlantic Seaboard mopped its collective brow today in the heat, and it wasn't from forest fires.

Before the march of summer heat, records fell like starched collars in many places in the East, especially in New England. At Boston a 12-year-old record was shattered when the thermometer registered 94 degrees at 4 p. m. Brockton, Mass., reported a new record with a reading of 94, at 2:30 p. m.

New York City the thermometer reading twice broke the record for the date, registering 87 at 11:45 Eastern Standard Time, turning cooler for three hours and then rising to 87 again at 3:30. It was the hottest May 7 in 54 years, the previous high mark being set at 83 in 1876. Three prostrations were reported to the police.

Record-breaking temperatures also were reported from other Eastern cities. Down Baltimore way the thermometer registered 95 and one death was laid to the heat.

The weather man had a cheerful word to say, however. "Thunder showers and cooler tomorrow for most of the East," he said.

New York, May 7 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Five heat prostrations and one death attributable indirectly to the weather were reported today in this city.

Thundershowers Are Promised.

Thundershowers were promised for late tonight or early tomorrow morning. When they do come, according to the official forecasters, they will pay not a mere fleeting visit but supply a thorough cooling drenching. The first indication of a break in the hot spell came after 7 o'clock tonight when the thermometer suddenly dropped 3 degrees to 83 and the skies became overcast.

New York put on its summer dress for the first time this year today. The Yankee Stadium and more humdrum offices blossomed out in shirt sleeves, while bathing suits dotted the beaches. Women took advantage of the weather to wear as little as possible and managed to look cool, even as they tramped the baked pavements.

Throughout New England and New Jersey unseasonable temperatures caused distress. In Long Branch, Christopher L. Hollywood, manager of the Western Union Telegraph branch office, dropped dead of heart failure superinduced by heat. The first drowning of the season was reported at Deal Lake, N. J., where Herbert Gee, 14-year-old Negro, lost his life in 20 feet of water.

Robsion Is G. O. P. Senate Nominee

Incumbent Named Without Any Opposition for Short and Long Terms.

Lexington, Ky., May 7 (A.P.).—Kentucky Republicans in convention here today chose John M. Robsion, incumbent, as the party's nominee for both short and long terms as United States senator. Senator Robsion was unopposed.

Robsion, former congressman from the Eleventh Kentucky District, was appointed senator by Gov. Flem D. Sampson to fill the vacancy caused by the appointment of Frederic M. Sackett as ambassador to Germany. Kentucky voters will elect senators this year to serve until April, 1931, when Sackett's term was to expire, and for the six-year term ending in 1937.

Ben Williamson, Ashland, Ky., capitalist, has announced as the Democratic candidate for the short term, and Judge Mills M. Logan, Bowling Green, member of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, as Democratic candidate for the long term. The Democratic State committee, meeting at Louisville today, voted to select the party nominees in a primary the first Saturday in August, declaring that candidates who have already announced favor a primary.

Hoover Gets His Fish But Bass Eludes Law

Maine's Pride Soothed As White House Salmon Is Saved from Kitchen.

A fish story came from the White House yesterday. This is the way the tale runs:

Admirers of President Hoover recently sent to the White House a salmon taken from the waters near Bangor, Me. The fish, said to be a beauty, went—by error—to the White House kitchen instead of to the Executive offices.

The White House chef, evidently thinking that the place for so fine a fish was the oven, immediately decapitated it and prepared it for its journey which would end on the presidential table.

Through the undeground system news of what had happened reached Representative Donald Francis Snow (Republican), Maine. Mr. Snow at once left the floor of the House of Representatives and rushed in a taxicab to the White House where he went into conference with the chef and Col. Starling, chife of the secret service and an expert on fish and fishing.

The result was that late the same afternoon the orange-pink salmon was shown to the President in its full native splendor and received his full approval. The head had been sewed back on. The teller of the tale did not add whether Mr. Hoover, himself somewhat of a pisciculturist, was taken in by the hoax or not.

Policeman Gets Wet and Prisoner But Finny Evidence Escapes.

You've heard the stories of the Canadian Royal Mounted Police who always get their man. Well, here's a yarn about a Washington policeman who got his fish—almost!

Private Clarence Morgan, of the Seventh Precinct, had just been assigned since the advent of warm weather to patrol the Potomac River in the vicinity of Chain Bridge to see that no one violates the District fishing ordinance.

Yesterday afternoon he chanced upon Marvin Beverly, 24 years old, of 3413 N street northwest, just as he was pulling a large bass (it looked like it weighed 15 pounds, Morgan told his colleagues) from the the river. But Beverly saw him about the same time and so threw the writhing fish back into the water as the policeman made a lurch for him.

Undismayed and thinking quickly, Morgan dived into the river in pursuit of the liberated bass. He wanted it for evidence, he said afterward. All he got, though, was a thorough wetting.

Beverly was later booked at the Seventh Precinct Station, however, with rod and tackle as evidence. He was released upon deposit of $25 collateral for a hearing in Police Court this morning.

$14,829,780 BUDGET URGED FOR SCHOOLS

Largest Amount in History Asked by Board for Next Fiscal Year.

SENATE ACTION AWAITED

An expenditure for District schools in the next fiscal year, amounting to approximately $14,829,780, the largest in the history of the local school system, was approved by the Board of Education at a meeting yesterday afternoon.

This recommended appropriation is included in the estimates for 1932 drawn up by the school board finance committee, headed by Rabbi Abram Simon. It is $941,670 in excess of the 1931 budget which is now before the Senate. This budget aggregates $13,888,110. It has passed the House.

The 1930 school budget, now in opeartion, totals $11,984,600. This was the largest school appropriation ever given the District of Columbia. A glance at the Washington school financial history for the last three years reveals that school officials have increased their requests each year by more than $1,000,000.

School officials stress the point that the 1932 estimates are strictly tentative. Their revision will depend on what disposal is made by the Senate of the 1931 budget. If the 1931 budget is modified, the new estimates will be modified in accordance, board members poin out.

The newly recommended estimates exclude fire protection and health provisions in District schools and several other items. Most of the items are in excess of those in the 1931 budget. Provisions for construction are slightly less, while the land items are considerably more.

School officials have requested that the exact amount of the items be withheld until the report is completely revised after action is taken on the 1931 budget. The 1932 recommendations will now go to the District Commissioners for further study. The Commissioners had requested that the figures be in their hands by May 5, but the finance committee found it impossible to complete its report by that time.

GEN. DUMONT NAMED AS DIVORCE IS GIVEN

World War Aviator Granted Decree; Former Attache Held Corespondent.

HOTEL MAN TESTIFIES

After hearing testimony that Brig. Gen. George A. L. Dumont, former military attache of the French Embassy, had entertained Mrs. Muriel De Vere Lyttleton Hoover in his rooms at the Wardman Park Hotel in his pajamas while she was garbed in negligee, Justice William Hitz in District Supreme Court yesterday granted Lawrence E. Hoover, World War aviator, an interlocutory decree of absolute divorce.

This testimony was given by a former assistant manager of the Wardman Park Hotel, where Mrs. Hoover and Gen. Dumont both lived. In addition, the witness testified that he had seen the general and Mrs. Hoover locked in an embrace.

Questioned minutely by Defense Counsel Frank J. Kelly, the witness told the court that he had been called to Gen. Dumont's apartment early in the morning and that he had found both the general and Mrs Hoover in the bedroom of the former's apartment. On cross-examination he stated that he had reported what he had seen to the manager, but that nothing was ever done about it.

Neither Gen. Dumont nor Mrs. Hoover opposed Mr. Hoover's petition for divorce, and Attorney Austin Canfield of the firm of Lambert, Yeatman, Canfield & Horning, was appointed by the court last week to defend both the defendant and the corespondent. Both Mrs. Hoover and the general are now in France, according to representations made to the court by Attorney Kelly.

Hoover, who sued for divorce more than a year ago, charging his wife with infidelity with Gen. Dumont while he was absent on business in China, testified that upon his return he questioned his wife regarding her association with Gen. Dumont and that she had admitted everything.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were married in London in 1918, just before the Armistice. She was a recognized English beauty and their marriage was said to have been the culmination of a wartime romance.

Capper Measure to Keep Tindall Passed in Senate

Unless Enacted, Veteran Will Be Relieved in August.

The Capper bill to continue Dr. William Tindall in the service of the District Government was passed by the Senate yesterday and sent to the House.

Unless the Capper bill becomes a law, however, he will have to retire in August, a new provision in the retirement act making it mandatory upon the Commissoiners to relieve him. The Capper bill authorizes the Commissioners to make an exception in his case.

The Senate yesterday also passed another Capper bill, the purpose of which is to allow the Board of Education to use the old Business High School Building to relieve congestion in other schools. This measure also goes to the House.

When the Business High School moves into its new building and then

FIRST HEARINGS ON NAVAL PACT SET NEXT WEEK

Stimson Invited as First Foreign Relations Witness Monday.

ADAMS AND PRATT FOLLOW SECRETARY

Testimony on TreatyMay Take Ten Days Before Report Is Ready.

ROUSING RECEPTION GIVEN SENATOR REED

Hoover Reported Confident of Ratification for Agreement.

(Associated Press.)

Hearings will be started next week by two Senate committees on the London naval limitations treaty with prospects that it will be ten days or two weeks before the pact is ready for a report to the Senate.

Meeting for the first time on the treaty yesterday the Senate foreign relations committee, which has official custody of it, decided to begin hearings Monday in open session. It invited Secretary Stimson, head of the American delegation, as the first witness.

Secretary Adams, another of the American delegation, and Rear Admiral William Pratt, chief of the naval advisers to the London conference, will follow Mr. Stimson.

Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, said he had no other witnesses in mind, but that the scope of the hearings would depend on developments. He believed the hearings might run a week or two.

Hale Arranges Hearings.

Chairman Hale, of the Senate naval committee, then arranged for the hearings by his committee. He announced that these would begin next Tuesday with Secretary Adams as the first witness. However, this depends upon the Secretary first completing his appearance before the foreign relations committee.

Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, the last of the American delegation to return to this country, reached the Capital yesterday. He went to the White House to pay his respects to President Hoover and arrived at the Capitol in time for the meeting of the foreign relations committee.

His entrance to the Senate chamber stirred his colleagues to accord him a rousing reception.

Walsh Proposes Compliment.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, the assistant Democratic leader, in proposing the compliment, said:

"In token of the deserved esteem in which he is held by his colleagues, I suggest that Senator Reed be greeted upon his entrance to this chamber by

TORNADO TOLL IN TEXAS RISES TO 69 DEATHS

Loss in State Disaster Expected to Pass $500,000 Total.

RED CROSS RUSHES RELIEF TO SCENES

Frost Hardest Hit, With 22 Dead and 60 Badly Injured.

TWO TOWNS SPARED; HAVOC IN BETWEEN

281,250 Square Miles in Area Stricken by Deadly Storms.

Dallas, Tex., May 7 (A.P.).—Digging through debris of tornado-swept areas of central and south Texas, rescue workers tonight had recovered 69 bodies and had removed more than 100 injured to hospitals and homes for medical treatment.

No estimate of the number made homeless was available, nor had any official estimate of the property damage been made, but those in touch with the situation predicted the loss would easily exceed $500,000.

The series of tornado disturbances spread their havoc at widely separated places over an area of approximately 281,250 square miles, from Abilene on the west to Marshall, about 450 linear miles, and from Childress on the north to Runge, about 625 miles to the south.

Nine in Wreckage.

The tornadoes struck without much warning and a large number of those killed were caught in the destruction of their modest farm homes.

In one case a relief party found the bodies of nine members of one family in the wreckage of their home near Runge, where 26 persons lost their lives and approximately 60 were injured.

Frost, a village of 1,000 in central Texas, was the hardest hit of the towns struck. Its business district was practically destroyed and 22 of its residents killed and a large number injured.

Relief Fund Raised.

The rest of the death toll was as follows: Seven at Bynum and six in other sections of Hill County; two near West; one at San Antonio; three near Ennis, and two at Bronson.

Throughout last night rescue workers searched the ruins for the dead and injured and today the work of rehabilitation was begun. A relief fund of $900 was raised at Corsicana, near Frost, and a donation of $500 was announced by a Dallas newspaper.

Gov. Dan Moody ordered the adjutant general to send as many troops as needed to patrol the streets and to aid in the relief work at Frost.

The governor was informed that Albert Evans, assistant national di-

Many Bankers Favor Single Council Plan

Waller, Lawson, Cooper and McKee Among Champions of Washington Post's Proposal to Unify Trade, Civic and Professional Groups.

Many bankers of the city heartily indorse The Washington Post's campaign for a consolidation of the city's trade, professional and civic bodies into a single, formidable and easily workable unit to promote the National Capital's civic and commercial welfare. The opinions of some of them are printed below.

"I think the merging of Washington's business and civic groups into a single, strong agency is a very fine thing to accomplish," said President Wilmer J. Waller, of the District of Columbia Bankers Association. "Too often, the aim of a local movement is defeated through its presentation in a variety of forms to different authoritative groups. One unit, presenting a solid front and advancing to a specific objective, will have a great deal better opportunity of attaining it than by the aforesaid practices. This movement would avoid a duplication of endeavor that is frequently harmful. One force, actuated by a single ideal, a common purpose, would be far more productive of results."

"I am in favor of the idea," said President Alfred H. Lawson of the Washington Real Estate Board. "There is a need of combined and coordinated work for the realization of such things as would advance the civic and commercial interests of the National Capital."

President John Poole, of the Federal-American National Bank, said: "I have often thought that these bodies should be combined into one. Such a combined group would function very much better with a proper coordination of the component interests. Many business men can not give the time to attend the meetings of all the present organizations. Their interest in a single powerful agency would be greater. Such a unit would be more forceful and useful."

"I have for years favored this idea," said Col. Robert N. Harper, president of the District National Bank. "I have always believed that one strong body is better and more effective than a number of smaller ones and that we could put up a stronger front in Congress by means of the former agency. But the great idea is to get them together."

President George W. White, of the National Metropolitan Bank, says of the proposal: "Honestly, I individually think it a good thing. We can then get concentrated effort by the best representatives of the big organizations and I wish that it might be consummated early.

"I think the idea is wonderful," was the comment of Col. Wade H. Cooper, president of the Commercial National Bank. It means efficiency and economy, cooperation and coordination. I can not see why any sensible man should not get behind it."

President H. H. McKee, of the National Capital Bank, said: "I have

A certificate of death by suicide because of ill health was issued last night by Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt.

Upon returning from marketing about 5 o'clock, Mrs. Evalyn Rafter Weedon, his wife, discovered his prostrate form in a back room on the third floor of their home. ONE BALLOT NEEDED FOR HOOVER VICTORY

WHITE HOUSE SILENT; COURSE IS UNCERTAIN

Observers Believe Others Once Considered Will Be Turned To.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover has set about looking for another man for the Supreme Court to take the place of Judge John J. Parker, whose nomination was rejected by the Senate yesterday, 41 to 39.

It is within his power to resubmit Judge Parker's name and also to wait until Congress adjourns and give him a recess appointment, but it is not believed in any responsible quarter he will follow either course.

As to what he will do there was no comment at the White House. Senator Allen, of Kansas, and Assistant Secretary of State Cotton conferred with him directly after the worst defeat his administration has received, and there was some consideration given to the question of whether a statement should be issued. It was decided in the negative.

The impression prevailed, however, that the President would now turn to those other judges who were considered at the time Judge Parker was named, and who, according to Attorney General Mitchell, were mostly in the Third, Fourth, Fifth and Ninth Judicial Circuits.

Of these there is only one left from which a Southern man may be named, the Fifth. Judge Parker is of the Fourth Circuit. The Fifth immediately brings to mind Judge Nathan P. Bryan who is, however, a Democrat.

Outside the South the name of Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, has frequently bobbed up in the speculation. He, too, is a Democrat.

Only One Vote Needed.

At first blush one might say that inasmuch as the administration had to get only one more vote, it would resubmit Parker's name with that audacity which has characterized many Presidents. Every one of the 96 senators was accounted for yesterday, the actual recording being 49 to 47 against. A one-vote switch would have made it a tie and Vice President Curtis would have voted with the administration. He would not have been caught asleep as was his illustrious predecessor, Gen. Dawes.

But the bringing over of the necessary senator on a recount, even if it could be done, would cause so much resentment as to sway two or three senators of the temperament of Senator Carter Glass the other way.

Forsooth, the administration got every vote it could muster yesterday. Thirty-three Republicans, 13 Democrats and, believe it or not, one Progressive, were recorded on its side, and 28 Democrats, 13 Progressives and eight regular Republicans against it.

Last Named Give Margin.

It was these eight regulars, of course, and the cause they represented, the Negro opposition, that gave the margin of victory to the serious opponents of the judge. In the final analysis this margin was offset by four and perhaps five Democrats, who went over to the administration because of the Negro opposition. Of the remaining thirteen Democrats recorded in favor of confirmation, three, Senators Fletcher, Ransdell and Broussard, always vote with the Ad-

MEXICO ORDERS RED OFFICIAL TO GET OUT

Attache of Ousted Legation Given Till May 14 to Follow Superior.

SOVIET BREAK COMPLETE

Mexico City, May 7 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Prof. Jacob Friedman, until recently commercial attache of the Soviet Legation here, has been ordered to leave Mexico before May 14. The order for his expulsion, issued in accordance with the Mexican constitution, was signed by President Pascual Ortiz Rubio and transmitted to the police of the capital by the ministry of Gubernacion, which acts as a link between the federal and state governments here.

With the expulsion of Friedman the break between the Mexican and Soviet governments will be complete. After the departure from here two months ago of Dr. Alexander Makar, Soviet minister, Friedman ceased to have official status. But he remained behind to wind up the commercial affairs of the Soviet Legation. These, former Minister Makar stated at the time of his exit from the country, involved about $250,000.

Since then the police have kept Friendman under surveillance. When they found him communicating with Mexican Communists and attending meets of radicals they decided that he had stayed in Mexico long enough. He was also under suspicion of acting as an intermediary between the Third Internationale at Moscow and Soviet agents in the United States.

A few weeks ago secret service operatives raided the former Soviet Legation here and went carefully through all papers and documents in Friedman's offices. It is reported that the commercial activities of the former legation also came in for investigation.

FOREST FIRES BLAZE ANEW IN FIVE STATES

New York Troopers Draft Autoists and Students as Fire Fighters.

JERSEY TOWN IN DANGER

(Associated Press.)

Breaking out again after the combined efforts of Massachusetts, New York and Connecticut fire fighters apparently had conquered it, the fire which since Sunday has swept the Taconic Ridge, where the boundaries of the three States touch, had assumed serious proportions again last night.

New York State troopers in Taconic Park were stopping motorists to press them into service, and even schoolboys were enlisted in the fight against the encroaching flames, which were estimated to have swept over 25,000 acres in the three States.

In addition to this blaze nine other serious fires were burning in Massachusetts and one in the northern Adirondacks of New York State defied the efforts of fire fighters.

William A. L. Bazeley, commissioner of conservation of Massachusetts, said last night that conditions had become more alarming, due to the heat, lack of rain and the brisk westerly wind. Only heavy rains can help the situation, he said.

The situation in Rhode Island and Connecticut—the Taconic fire had stopped its advance into Connecticut—apparently has passed its crisis, but a serious fire in Leekton, N. J., destroyed a sawmill, four homes, many outbuildings and a valuable tract of pine timber. Farther south in the New Jersey fire area fifteen fire companies and scores of volunteers were trying to hold back flames that licked at the edges of New Gretna, a town of some 500 homes.

E. S. Hall, carpenter of the District Building, last fall made many clappers for the use of various persons to go about the building and make a noise to scare away the roosting starlings. publicans when there is a tariff bill pending, and a fourth, Senator Swanson, has become such an elderly statesman that he can not afford to be found often in the opposition.

But it was the Negro opposition that gave the commanding position to the movement led by the Progressives, aided this time in some degree by organized labor. The drive would probably have been within two votes as strong had organized labor not opened its mouth.

For one thing it was the Negro opposition that brought about demoralization in the regular Republican ranks. Eighteen regulars who only a few weeks previously had decried the opposition to the President's Supreme Court appointments got together and agreed to submit a statement or a formal utterance to the President that they could not vote for Judge Parker.

Expected No More Insistence.

They were firmly of the belief at the time that this would prove sufficient, that the President, being a sympathetic Republican, would withdraw the nomination. None of them realized they would have to go through with it and when the vote came only eight were equal to the task. That ten were brought back in line—Senators McCulloch, Patterson, Goff, Hatfield, Allen, Kean, Hastings, Thomas, of Idaho; Townsend and Metcalf—is evidence of the administration's remarkable persuasive powers when it gets to work, such as it did the last two weeks, but at the same time it accentuates the defeat.

It was the first time the Hoover administration had "put the screws to the boys," as the expression goes. And once the screws were put the senators went to work—Allen, and the rest of them. Even Hastings, with a sacrificial air, did his speaking bit.

The Senate has been rejecting Supreme Court appointments, of course, ever since the beginning of the Government, but it is something that it does not return to week after week. Judge Parker, indeed, is the first one to be rejected in 36 years, since the administration of Grover Cleveland, who incidentally had two rejected on him. In all, Judge Parker is the twenty-second nominee to fall short of confirmation.

The backbone of the opposition to him, of course, was that of the Progressives, based on his reputed lack of sympathy for the laboring class. The debate turned on his upholding, as a member of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, the so-called yellow dog injunction issued in West Virginia in the war between the coal operators and the miners many years ago.

This injunction and kindred court actions at the time have been widely held responsible for emaciating the United Mine Workers. Reduced in numbers, they are now beset with internal disorders, and their once militant head, John L. Lewis, has reached that conservative stage where he is frequently mentioned for the labor Cabinet post.

Borah Scores Judge's Reasons.

Judge Parker contended that in upholding the injunction he was bound by Supreme Court decisions. Senator Borah and others contended that he was not. They asserted that the decision proved him to be committed to the principle of the so-called yellow dog contract and that they would not agree for one of such a mind to sit upon the Supreme Court.

And running throughout the debate and undoubtedly lessening the enthusiasm of the administration workers was the absence in Judge Parker of what stood Chief Justice Hughes in good stead when the assault was made on him—eminence.

The word "mediocre" ran throughout the discussion and even those senators who argued until they were blue in the face that he was "able" had the picture in the back of their heads of the way he came up. His position had not been attained through his accomplishments in the law, but rather in politics. As a North Carolina politician he was made a special prosecutor for the Department of Justice in the war frauds cases, which incidentally also came back to haunt him in this fight.

Made Sacrifice Race.

Subsequently, he was brought to President Coolidge's attention for a vacancy on the Circuit Court of Appeals because of a race he had made as the Republican candidate for governor—one of those sacrificial races which Republicans are required to make in States like North Carolina and New York.

It is not misstating the situation, either, to say that the great majority of the senators believed that it was political influences that brought him to President Hoover's attention this time and that the Department of Justice investigation rather concentrated upon him instead of having kept the door open for the most outstanding jurist in the South.

With the majority of the senators thinking this, the Dixon letter certainly did the Parker case no good.

Ban on Any Southerner Seen.

The argument was made during the fight that defeat of Judge Parker precluded any Southerner being appointed to the court. Some of the arguments seemed to be inspired and therefore warranting the conclusion that they were authoritative.

The Negro opposition would be raised to any other Southerner, as all Southerners think alike on the race question, it was contended, and the President, under the circumstances, would not think of looking to the South again.

It is doubtful in the first place if another Southern appointment would get caught in such a position as Judge Parker, but even if the Negro opposition developed again the organization of the Senate would insure his confirmation, even if the regulars bolted again, insofar as that one question is concerned. And on that one question confirmation would come very easily. It would be surprising, indeed, if the Senate did not accept the next nominee, regardless of who he is, without much scrutiny at all. The winners of this fray will want to rest a while on their laurels. But inasmuch as those arguments were made with an authoritative ring it is doubtful if another Southerner will be selected.

Roll Call Most Tense.

It is seldom that a roll call has ever been taken in such tense atmosphere as that one yesterday. The galleries were crowded.

And the conglomerate heartbeat could be heard as the vote wended tediously over such uncertain bumps as Deneen, Schall and Trammell, with each side moving neck and neck. At Walcott it was 38 and 37, and then there was no further doubt, because remaining were five men who could have been classified a month ago—Waterman and Watson on the one side and the two Walshs and Wheeler on the other.

Strange things happened then. Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, sitting in the gallery, was unable to restrain her delight. Senators went over to congratulate Borah, a man indisputably to be reckoned with in the shaping of this Nation's destiny.

If ever a man swayed a vote in the last few minutes of discussion, he did it yesterday. Certainly he gave courage to the weak. He crowded more into five minutes than the average man can say in a week.

Fights of Past Reviewed.

Answering Senator Fess' renewed attack that the Parker opposition was a socialistic attack upon the court, Senator Borah ran down the list of those who have led fights against Supreme Court appointments in the past—Webster, Clay Calhoun, a host of them, and contended that he could not believe but that they were actuated by the highest motives to serve their country. It is not an attack on the court, he said.

"And in all this debate," he concluded, "no one has soiled his lips by defending the contract involved in this case—and, after all, that contract and decision ought to be the determining factor."

He probably slept fitfully last night, because there is no minimizing his victory—rather his victory and that of Norris and LA Follette and that little band.

They have come from far behind but it is a case now of the conservatives' catching up with them, not standing unmovably in their way.

Parker Thanks Friends In Senate for Efforts

Richmond, Va., May 7 (A.P.).—Judge John J. Parker, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, said today that he had no comment to make on the rejection of his nomination for the Supreme Court except to thank his friends in the United States Senate and elsewhere.

When informed that his nomination had failed of confirmation, he said:

"I have no statement to make except that I greatly appreciate the support of the friends who stood by me so loyally in the fight made on my confirmation.

"While I am, of course, disappointed in the result of the Senate vote, it makes me happy to think that so many of the foremost men of the country as well as friends in all walks of life supported me to the end."

Judge Parker was present today at the regular term of the court which had heard arguments up until 1:30 o'clock, just a few minutes before the vote in the Senate.

Colored Association's Leader Lauds Senate

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—Walter White, acting secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, tonight characterized Judge John J. Parker's rejection by the Senate as a "victory for the United States Constitution and for public respect for the United States Supreme Court." The association had opposed Judge Parker's confirmation.

"It was felt," he said, "that the nomination was nothing more than a political sop to that section and group which believes in nullifying the political rights of United States citizens because of their color."

TARIFF BILL SENT BACK TO CONFEREES

Agreement on All Items in Measure Insisted on by Senate.

MEANS SPEED, IS CLAIM

(Associated Press.)

After a dispute over procedure, the Senate yesterday returned the tariff bill to conference with the House without acting on any of its provisions.

Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, called the conferees to meet tomorrow afternoon.

Against his wishes and at the demand of the Democrats, Senator Smoot moved that the Senate insist upon the remaining six major points of difference between the two Houses, including the export debenture and flexible provisions, and ask for a further conference. The motion carried without a roll call.

Opposed by Minority.

The Utahan preferred to have the Senate act first on the partial conference agreement already approved by the House but minority leaders argued it would make for speed if the conferees attempted to reach an agreement on the remaining items in controversy and then have the Senate act on the bill as a whole.

Besides the farm debenture and flexible provisions, the two Houses have yet to reach an accord on the Senate amendments relating to silver, cement, and lumber rates, and reorganization of the tariff commission. All have been rejected by the House.

Senate conferees are under an informal pledge not to yield on the debenture and the presidential flexible provision before coming back to the Senate for instructions.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader and one of the Senate conferees, believes the conference will reach a speedy agreement on the disputed clauses unreserved for instructive votes and that it will report the bill for Senate action early next week.

No Impasse As Yet Seen.

Arguing that the measure should be sent directly to conference, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the minority chieftain, said the "real gist of the controversy is in the items in disagreement and many senators will be guided in their votes by the manner in which these items are disposed of."

Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, said it would have required six weeks of debate if the partial agreement were taken up yesterday.

Asserting it was "perfectly obvious that every one voting on the partial report does so without taking into consideration the whole bill," Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, said if the debenture and legislative flexible provisions were agreed upon in conference he would vote for the bill; otherwise he would oppose it.

"We have not reached an impasse in conference," asserted Senator Simmons (Democrat), North Carolina, pleading for an immediate conference.

McMaster Beats Hoover Partisan

South Dakota Senator Is Primary Victor Over G. O. P. Regular.

Sioux Falls, S. Dak., May 7 (A.P.).—The majority of Senator W. M. McMasters, of South Dakota, first of the independent Republicans to seek renomination since introduction of the tariff bill, late today reached 12,500 as belated returns were tabulated from yesterday's primary election. His opponent, George J. Danforth, who ran as a "Hoover Republican," conceded defeat and wired Senator McMaster his congratulations.

The primary failed, however, to produce a nominee in the Republican gubernatorial race in which Miss Gladys Pyle, secretary of state, was a candidate. It will be necessary for the State convention to select a nominee, because the State law requires that the winner poll 35 per cent of the vote cast. The 1,629 precincts gave Miss Pyle 30,489 and Gunderson 27,235.

Gov. W. J. Bulow was leading almost 3 to 1 in the race for the Democratic senatorial nomination, while D. A. McCullough, gubernatorial candidate, was in a close race with L. E. Corey. Representative Royal Johnson was assured of renomination on the Republican ticket, while Fred H. Wildebrandt held a big lead in the Democratic contest. The total vote passed 110,000 today.

NYE SOLICITS HELP IN PRIMARY INQUIRY

ILLINOIS TRIP DELAYED

(Associated Press.)

The cooperation of Federal and State district attorneys at Philadelphia and Pittsburgh was sought yesterday by Chairman Nye, of the Senate campaign funds investigating committee, in an effort to prevent excessive expenditures and corruption in the forthcoming Pennsylvania senatorial primary.

In a letter to the attorneys, Nye urged that they transmit to the Senate committee any information which would "disclose the existence of corruption, excessive campaign expenditures, or undue influences exerted in the primary campaign in Pennsylvania."

The letter was sent to Calvin S. Boyer, Federal attorney at Philadelphia; John Monaghan, State attorney at Philadelphia; Louis E. Graham, Federal attorney at Pittsburgh, and Andrew T. Park, State attorney at Pittsburgh.

Postpone Illinois Trip.

Senator Grundy, of Pennsylvania, and Secretary Davis are candidates for the Republican senatorial nomination in the primary on May 20. Nye wrote that the committee "was particularly anxious so to conduct our effort as to prevent a corrupt campaign and a corrupt election."

In a statement to newspapermen, he added that the committee desired any information available concerning excessive expenditures and corruption in any other senatorial primaries.

The committee had planned to journey to Illinois this week to hold hearings on the recent senatorial primaries in that State, but Nye said the trip had been postponed because the committee members were unable to leave Washington.

Mrs. McCormick Challenges.

Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick won the Republican senatorial nomination over Senator Deneen in the Illinois primary. Former Senator James Hamilton Lewis is the Democratic nominee.

Mrs. McCormick yesterday challenged assertions attributed to the Illinois Democratic State central committee that $750,000 had been spent from other sources in addition to the amount she spent in the primary campaign in which she won the Republican senatorial nomination.

In a telegram to Thomas F. Donovan, chairman of the Democratic committee, Mrs. McCormick demanded that if the committee knew of funds spent, aside from those she had reported, the evidence be sent to Chairman Nye, of the Senate campaign funds investigating committee.

Text of Telegram.

In her telegram, Mrs. McCormick called attention to a resolution adopted by the committee Tuesday "criticizing the alleged excessive expenditures of money in my recent primary campaign."

"I see in newspaper dispatches that the adoption of the resolution was preceded by statements, presumably made by members of your committee, that in addition to the amount which I have reported as having expended out of my own pocket in the primary campaign, $750,000 from other sources was spent in my behalf," her telegram said.

Will Notify Nye.

"I challenge these assertions. I earnestly insist that if your committee or its members have any knowledge of funds spent in behalf of my candidacy outside of the amount which I reported expending, under oath, that such evidence should be at once submitted to United States Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the subcommittee of the Senate committee on privileges and elections, which is now investigating primary expenses in various States.

"I shall call the attention of Senator Nye to the published reports of your meeting and suggest to him that the members of your committee should be given full opportunity to present the evidence which they claim to have."

Woman Seriously Hurt When Struck by Auto

Felled by an automobile on Four-and-a-half street near E street southwest last night, Mrs. Sarah Attelman, 38 years old, of 1317 Prince street, Alexandria, Va., is at the Emergency Hospital in a critical condition. She has two broken legs and possible internal injuries.

Mrs. Attelman was struck, police say, by a machine driven by William W. Everhart, of Third street near D street northwest. He is being held at the Fourth Precinct station house pending the outcome of Mrs. Attelman's injuries.

Bicyclist Held on Rum Charge.

Percy E. Allen, 38 years old, colored, of 2218 Twelfth place northwest, was arrested yesterday by Eighth Precinct detectives while he was alleged to have been carrying two quarts of liquor on a bicycle. He was charged with transportation and possession.

Girl's Shot Saves Man's Life; Absolved in Court

Chicago, May 7 (A.P.).—One good turn deserves another, in the opinion of Frank Petmezas, a hotel proprietor.

Last March 28 Miss Eva Martinez fired a bullet into Petmezas' abdomen, necessitating his removal to a hospital, where doctors found his appendix would have burst and probably caused his death in a few hours. Physicians said this danger would not have been discovered if it had not been for the shooting.

So today, when the time came for Miss Martinez to answer for the shooting, Petmezas refused to press any charges against her.

PICTURES TO RECORD HISTORICAL EVENTS

Films to Be Preserved, Hays Tells Moving Picture Convention.

TELEVISION AIMS TOLD

Permanent preservation of the picture records of historical events now available and of those to be made in the future by the motion picture industry, has been assured through the cooperation of President Hoover, Will H. Hays, president of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, told members of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers at their annual banquet last night in the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. Hays' announcement was made during a speech in which he praised the efforts of science toward better motion pictures in sound and color. He declared that he was privileged by the President to announce that the latter would appoint a committee to act with a similar committee from the industry to work toward the preservation of the records of all historical events.

Banquet Ends Busy Day.

The banquet last night climaxed a busy day for the delegates to the convention. After a morning of reading scientific papers on various phases of the industry, the engineers were presented at the White House and then visited Mount Vernon.

Praise for the new production code recently announced and the prophecy that "motion pictures in sound and color will be the textbook of the future," featured Mr. Hays' address, following his announcement of the plan to keep alive all records through the medium of the film.

John I. Crabtree, president of the Society of Engineers, replied to Mr. Hays in a speech in which he urged the youth of today to turn their mechanical and scientific talent to the motion picture industry because of the unlimited future in prospect. Mr. Crabtree pledged the continued efforts of the society to the advancement of the industry as a means of increasing the enjoyment of the patron on whom its success depends.

Washington Inventor Talks.

Talking on the general subject of "The Engineer and his Tools," C. Francis Jenkins, Washington inventor of television, described the wonders which have resulted from man's use of the implements given him and of the improvement made in these tools rather than in the mentality of the human being.

He said: "As far as our picture engineers are interested, I confidently assert that the day is now within sight when distant scenes and notable events may be reproduced in our houses and on the screens of our theaters simultaneously with their happening; and when motion pictures will be distributed from Hollywood directly by radio instead of by film."

Among the distinguished guests of the engineers at their dinner were H. L. Clarke, president of the Fox Film Corporation; George Eastman, chairman of the board of the Eastman Kodak Co.; H. B. Franklin, president of the Fox West Coast Theaters; J. E. tterson, president of the Electrical Research Products, Inc.; D. Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, and H. M. Warner, president of Warner Bros.' Pictures, Inc.

Justice Cites Lawyer In Alleged Contempt

Drury is alleged to have made derogatory remarks about a District Supreme Court jury which last week returned a verdict in favor of the Follansbee-Carlton Co. and against the Southern Building. Reports of the alleged remarks were made to Justice Bailey and were substantiated with affidavits. Justice Bailey on Tuesday certified the matter to United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, and Mr. Rover and Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw acted yesterday.

ALL ARE CRIMINALS, SAYS PSYCHIATRIST

Mental Hygiene Congress Discusses Solution of Nonsocial Acts.

PRISONS HELD NO CURE

All people are instinctively criminal. Each person comes into the world with impulses that are not adjusted to society, and if these impulses were realized all would be criminals. Such were the assertions of eminent mental specialists at the International Congress on Mental Hygiene being held here. These startling declarations were coupled with the belief that the solution to the crime problems lies, not in prisons, but in the invisible depths of the mind which even psychiatrists admit can now be but vaguely touched.

Dr. Franz Alexander, of Berlin, a noted criminologist, supplemented the declarations with the observation that from the age of 6 each child gradually adjusts himself from the demands of the instinct to the demands of society. Further, he asserted, the adjustment is one that none ever reaches successfully.

Chronic and Occasional Criminals.

Chronic criminals are distinguished from the occasional criminal by the fact that the former have a constant tendency to perform criminal acts, while the latter is criminal only under special circumstances.

All the confinement that could be inflicted will not reform a habitual criminal, he averred, while the temporary criminal will be reformed with the removal of the circumstances which prompts him to crime.

As in all other branches of the study of human beings, Dr. Alexander noted, the sexual factor has also been neglected in the sphere of criminology. This taboo of sexuality in science concerned with human nature is a characteristic mark of our present civilization, he said.

Judges try to explain every human action by consciously rational motives, is the belief of Dr. Alexander, and even prefer every phantastically construed motive to the generally determining instinctive emotional motive, as to the nature of which judges know nothing, he says.

Sees Irrational Trait.

It is Dr. Alexander's thought that the behavior of a chronic criminal betrays a clearly irrational trait. Their actions are prompted by unconscious demands of instinct without any regard for the experiences of the past or for the present situation, according to the criminologist.

Invariably when a criminologist is brought into court, he hears that the culprit is an intelligent, often talented, man and one who is driven as if by some evil spirit to commit acts contrary to his nature. In this situation, Dr. Alexander explained, the scientific mind must bow to the intuitive wisdom of the folk.

"It is an evil spirit that drives the subject," he said, "only the demon in the case is the compulsively conquering instinct and impulse."

Value of Punishment.

Dr. Alexander conceded that punishment may have a curative effect on criminals who act with conscious deliberation, but added that punishment has the opposite effect on the neurotic culprits, since these measures do not reach the mental illness which is the basic cause of the criminal act.

Punishment endured by the latter group for their acts is an agency which disrupts the moral repression of these people, he pointed out, and encourages them to new offenses.

Dr. Alexander admitted that a certain discontent is characteristic of civilized man in general and qualified the remark with an exposition of relative independence of this discontent from mental disease.

As one of the dominant reasons for the lapses of people to a state of mental illness provocative of criminal acts, he cited the organization of society which forces adult life to neglect the childish demands for pleasure. When the outlets for play are utilized by this type, he declared, an important social problem will have been met.

Dr. Bernard Glueck, of New York City, discussing mental analysis as applied to child guidance, declared that "murder, like charity, begins at home." His remark was made during an exposition of the clinical manifestations of the destructive possibilities of the home and family relationships.

In the future, he looks forward to the time when the right and privilege of parenthood will be defined in more civilized terms than at present. Formal education, he said, must be supplemented by education of a more vital type which would give a girl and boy the opportunity to know something of their own natures.

Outlets for the feeble-minded in industry were explained by Robert A. York, of the Rome State School at Rome, N. Y., who said that colonies have been established through that State of mentally deficient boys and girls. Many of them are very successful in their limited spheres, he said.

CAPPER, KLEIN LAUD WORK OF RED CROSS

Karl Bickel Also Speaker in Third Day's Session of Convention.

MEETING TO END TODAY

Agriculture and industry yesterday paid tribute to the Red Cross' work through Senator Capper, of Kansas, and Assistant Secretary of Commerce Julius Klein, principal speakers at the third day's session of the organization's annual convention in the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Senator Capper reviewed the humanitarian and economic benefits brought to the farmer by the Red Cross, and said that "in every relief operation following a tornado, the Red Cross awards to farmers sufficient funds for the reconstruction of farm buildings where needed." In enumerating expenditures of the organization for the relief of farmers, he said that $17,000,000 was spent following the Mississippi flood of 1927.

Mr. Klein's address was read by Col. Clarence M. Young, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, due to the author's illness. Mr. Klein said that Red Cross' assistance in stricken areas had often prevented the disintegration of the economic structure in many parts of the country.

Characterizing purchasing power as "the very essence of industrial and commercial health," he showed how the Red Cross had benefited the entire Nation through relieving economic suffering in various sections. Touching on the organization's plea for funds with which to expand its work, Mr. Klein said that the public should respond whole-heartedly with gifts, no matter how small.

Karl Bickel, president of the United Press Associations, spoke of the support given the Red Cross by the press, and ventured the opinion that "in no other country of the world could be found such highly centralized agencies for gathering news, nor such an efficiently organized relief body."

Group meetings and lectures in the morning were followed by a Junior Red Cross pilgrimage to Mount Vernon. Wreaths were placed on the tomb of George Washington and that of the Unknown Soldier. The junior members also decided to send a good-will message to all nations on May 15. Secretary of the Interior Wilbur will serve as chairman of the broadcast, and Secretary of State Stimson will be asked to deliver an address.

The convention will close this afternoon.

Compton, Calif., with a 1930 census tally of 12,291, a 731.59 per cent increase over 1920, yesterday took the increase percentage lead among cities of 10,000 away from Hopewell, Va., which reported 11,325 population, an increase of 710.7 per cent.

Culver City, Calif., gained 1011.5 per cent, but its population, barely more than 5,000, did not fall within the classification. Even it did not compare with Longview, Wash., whose population of 10,491 is all increase. Ten years ago there was no Longview.

DRY UNIT TRANSFER HEADS SENATE LIST

Steering Committee Maps Legislative Program for Session.

TARIFF TRACK CLEARED

(Associated Press.)

The Senate's legislative program for the session was mapped out yesterday by the Republican steering committee, with the administration bill for transfer of the prohibition administration from the Treasury to the Justice Department heading the list.

The prohibition measure, against which little opposition is in prospect, will be taken up as soon as the Senate disposes of the pending measure by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, to establish Federal employment agencies.

Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, acting chairman of the steering committee, explained that the tariff bill and the London naval treaty would be given the right of way when they are ready for consideration.

Likewise, preferred status will be given the rivers and harbors measure and the veterans' compensation bill, both of which have been passed by the House, as soon as they are reported.

After the prohibition transfer bill, the steering committee placed the resolution by Senator Swanson (Democrat), Virginia, providing for a change in rules to restrict double consideration of measures by the Senate.

Next in line are the measures by Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, to rstrict railroad consolidations and to erorganize the Federal Power Commission. A bill by Senator Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, to tax oleomargarine products and the House measure modifying the merchant marine act will get next attention.

TWO 'RIDE' VICTIMS FOUND DEAD OF SHOT

One That of Noted Gangster and Other Unidentified; Both Riddled.

LATTER'S EYES TORN OUT

Chicago, May 7 (A.P.). — Another "ride" victim went for his last trip today. His mutilated body was found face down in a ditch along the Joliet road, a favorite battle ground of bootleggers.

County highway police believed at first that the victim was "Big Jack" Heinman, a Capone clansman. The man apparently had been tortured before he was slain. Both eyeballs had been gouged out, and there were bruises and cuts on the throat. A machine gun had sprayed a dozen bullets into his head.

Although the body sprawled awkwardly in the ditch, as though tossed from a speeding automobile, the coat lay folded beside the body, and a gray fedora hat had been placed nearby on a newspaper dated today.

The scene was beyond the city limits at Ninety-third street and Harlem avenue, a mile from the spot where John "Dingbat" Oberta and his bodyguard were found slain a few weeks ago.

Identification as Heinman was erroneous. Fingerprint experts found he had no criminal record. The body was taken to the morgue, unidentified.

Pueblo, Colo., May 7 (A.P.).—The last of the four Danna brothers is dead, and like his three brothers he died a victim of the guns of gangland.

Riddled with three shotgun charges, the body of Sam Danna was found in an alley of the residential district here last night. He had been "taken for a ride," the police said.

A gun battle September 10, 1922, fired the feud which flared intermittently for eight years. Dominic Inglo, said to have been an imported gunman, and Pete Caslino were killed. John Danna was charged with Inglo's murder, but was slain by gunfire from a passing automobile while he was at work in a field on the Danna ranch before he ever came to trial.

Tony and Pete Danna were slain by feudists at a Pueblo street corner May 14, 1926.

Sam Danna was seriously wounded at the Danna ranch October 10, 1928, by shots fired from a closed car.

Blackhand activities have generally been blamed by Pueblo authorities for the slayings. Rivalry of liquor gangs is believed by police to have been the incentive for other recent slayings in which the Dannas and their enemies have figured.

New York Pays Its Homage As Gold Star Mothers Sail

Touching Scenes Enacted in Harbor at Departure of First Contingent of Pilgrims to Graves of War Heroes in France.

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—As the Atlantic battle fleet steamed into New York harbor today and the Navy's fighting planes passed overhead, the first contingent of Gold Star Mothers sailed for France on a pilgrimage to the graves of American boys who are buried there.

The gray ships and the roaring planes were left behind as the mothers looked out on the Atlantic toward the graves that were the objective of their pilgrimage of remembrance.

On the liner America there were 232 Gold Star Mothers from a dozen States. It was a day of strain, for the mothers of men who were old enough to fight in the World War are no longer young, but they bore it well, although at times emotion overcame them and they wept.

In midmorning they were taken to the America at its Hoboken pier and were greeted by Capt. George Fried. There were speeches and presentation of medals, and the band seemed to know no music but sadly remniscent songs of 1918.

The last of the battle fleet past, the America swung into the river and headed for the sea, with half a hundred swift planes circling overhead. At the battery a fireboat spouted five feathery streams of water into the air in salute and harbor craft turned loose a din of salutation

Accompanying the America past the Statue of Liberty was the city tug Macom, with a delegation of gold star mothers from New York and New Jersey. They will leave later in one of the other contingents which will make up the total of 6,000 mothers who are to visit the graves of their soldier sons this summer.

The pathos of these women, their sorrow and their sturdy bravery, their joy that the Government was sending theim to visit the last resting places of their loved ones, was perhaps best summarized by Capt. Fried of the America.

"I'm going to try to make them happy," he said, "but some of them when they talk to me get tears in their eyes. It's a tough thing to see an old mother with tears in her eyes."

When those ashore last saw the America it was entering the Narrows as three planes swooping from the sky let loose upon its decks a rain of poppies, as bright as those that grew so red among the war-torn wheat fields.

brought on by the heat, and John Beckwith, 68, was overcome while walking on the street and was taken to a hospital.

The previous record for spring was 94 degrees, established in 1896.

Visalia, Calif., May 7 (A.P.).—A heavy snow was falling today over the entire Sierra Nevada range in Tulare County as low as the Ash Mountains Sequoia Park headquarters, where "old-timers" said they had never before seen snow in May.

Mercury Climbs to 98 As Heat Blankets City

Dawning hot and growing hotter, yesterday impressed many sweltering citizens as the warmest day of the year, but the high reading on the kiosk near Pennsylvania avenue and Fourteenth street was 98 degrees at 4 o'clock, compared with the 101 mark recorded several days ago. The official high recorded yesterday on the Weather Bureau's breezy eminence was 91, or 2.4 degrees under the year's official high of 93.4, chalked up Monday.

Relief is predicted for tomorrow, when thundershowers are expected to cool things off. A gradual return to temperatures between 80 and 85 is forecast for the end of the week.

The Weather Bureau said that the cause of the present almost unprecedented hot spell was a high pressure area stretching from the Azores to the South Atlantic States.

No heat prostrations were reported during the day, but genuine suffering was widespread, and electric fans and Palm Beach suits were pressed into service.

The all-time May high temperature at the Weather Bureau was recorded in 1925, when the mercury hit an official mark of 97.

The official weather report last night said that snow was falling at Cheyenne and Lander, Wyo.; Modena, Utah, and Flagstaff, Ariz.

RESCUERS RECOVER 66 DEAD AFTER TORNADOES IN TEXAS

rector of disaster relief of the Red Cross at St. Louis, was en route to the stricken area, and that all Red Cross agencies had been brought into play.

First reports from the storm districts placed the number killed at more than 70, but a closer check over crippled communication facilities lowered this figure. A number of those injured, however, were not expected to recover, and it was feared the final report would show a death list exceeding the original figure.

Many of the usual freaks accompanying tornadoes were reported. Runge and Nordheim, 6 miles apart, between which a wide path was made by the storm in that section, were not touched, the twister swerving just to the south of each town.

Single Funeral Service.

The affected area near Runge was about 300 yards wide and about 15 miles long, traversing a thickly settled farming district. Many of those killed were Mexicans.

A number of doctors from nearby towns were in the Runge area and great efforts were taken to prevent an outbreak of tetanus.

Most of the victims of the storm at Frost will be buried tomorrow. A single funeral service was planned for those buried in the cemetery of that place.

Guardsmen Patrol Streets.

Under a torrid Texas sun which dried the mud from yesterday's terrific downpour and gave no hint of the black tornadic clouds which brought tragedy, citizens of Frost labored to clear away the debris. The death list from the storm here was the largest loss of life ever recorded in Navarro Count and the injured take nto Corsicana hospitals numbered 60, many of them i nserious condition.

National Guardsmen patroled the streets, while the salvaging of wrecked stocks of merchandise began. Flood lights were installed by the Texas Power & Light Co. so the work could continue through the night. A crew of workmen was busy preparing the town's water system.

A check today revealed 47 business houses were demolished at Frost and the erection of temporary buildings to house the stock and merchandise will begin tomorrow. Hundreds of men from neighboring communities aided Frost citizens to clear streets and remove debris. The cemetery was in the path of the twister and a majority of the monuments were blown down and broken.

Hill County Suffers.

The death of two persons from injuries brought Hill County's too to thirteen. Twenty-three persons injured by the storm in he county were in a Hillsboro hospital. Some of the injured were reported in a serious condition. County officials estimated that a total of 75 persons were injured in the county and that approximately 50 farm homes were destroyed.

Emergency hospitals were established in Nordheim and Runge and several storerooms were turned into morgues. Physicians and nurses who hurried to the towns from San Antonio took care of the injured and operations were performed to save the lives of many persons maimed by debris hurled through the air.

Although high winds prevailed yesetrday from San Antonio as far south as Kenedy and hail stones damaged crops over a several mile area, the first serious damage in this area was inflicted when the wind dipped down on the farm of George Tips, 6 miles east of Kenedy, and killed Francisco Deluna, a Mexican. The tornado tore his home to small bits and scattered it for miles through the brush, but another Mexican living with Deluna escaped.

SPORADIC CLASHES MARK INDIA REVOLT

Nine Killed at Chittagong; Mob Charges Calcutta Police Station.

BOYCOTT VEXES LONDON

London, May 7 (A.P.).—As suddenly as they had flared up India's civil disobedience disorders subsided today. From a widely flung storm of violent encounters yesterday, Mahatma Gandhi's campaign of resistance to the government had simmered down to a few widely separated clashes.

The worst of these, costing nine lives, occurred at Chittagong, the scene on April 18 of a battle in which two Europeans and several natives were killed.

Again at Calcutta armed police were compelled to act. A mob raided the police station, smashed in its iron gates and there was checked. Several police officers suffered injuries and 25 arrests were made. Simla reported officially that four deaths had occurred in yesterday's riots. In the civilian hospital, 96 persons were treated. To this number were added 18 police injury cases.

Guards Kept Vigilant.

Advices from Delhi stated that patrols of cavalry, infantry and armored cars were being maintained today

The arrival of V. J. Patel at Bombay and his pronouncement for a widespread boycott against British goods was the outstanding development in that district. Dispatches did not indicate how Mahatma Gandhi's followers would accept this attitude.

The comparative quiet in Bombay was broken only by an early onslaught of a mob upon textile workers who sought to prevent reopening of cotton mills.

The government continues to avoid any utterance which might tend to inflame the native mind. Moderate Indian opinion, it was stated, continues to support the government There was a hopeful forward looking attitude for the proposed round table discussion.

One Briton Is Slain.

Thus far the government forces have emerged with only one fatality, the killing of a British citizen in Peshawar. This is pointed to as a matter for congratulation as well as an indication of the prompt action taken by the authorities.

Denials were given officially at Poona that the fourth battalion of the Mahratta light infantry recently had refused to obey orders to march to that city. Similar advices from Allahabad stated that the Benares police had remained loyal, dispelling rumors of disaffection.

No word came from the Yeroda prison today, indicating either that Mahatma Gandhi had chosen to maintain silence or that a ring of censorship might have been thrown about his place of enforced retreat.

London Alarmed at Boycott.

Few people in England are permitting themselves anything more than tempered optimism. Business circles in particular are becoming alarmed at the growth of the movement to boycott British goods, which was energetically pressed forward by V. J. Patel.

More and more Patel, who recently resigned the speakership of the legislative assembly and is a man of great influence, is coming to the fore as the actual, though not the nominal, successor of the imprisoned Gandhi in the field. An an address to 100,000 persons at Bombay this evening he declared the boycott of British goods was the most important part of the civil disobedience program.

"I want to fight the government on all fronts," he declared. "We shouldn't let the government remain at peace anywhere. I want neither peace for myself nor peace for my enemy."

suburbs nesting and raising more starlings. Meanwhile, pigeons have taken the place of the starlings, and Mr. Hall has been deputized to drive the birds from the building with an air rifle.

The pigeons are not so numerous as the starlings. It will be necessary to shoot but few of the birds, Mr. Hall believes, before they will learn to roost elsewhere. He began his job yesterday.

The former Board of Commissioners approved cutting the tops out of the shade trees along the avenue, but refused to permit any one to harm the starlings.

Prisoner Appears After Shooting

Man Freed by Attack on Policeman Turns Up and Posts Bond.

William F. Jackson, colored, of E street near Fourth street southeast, whose arrest Sunday was followed by the fatal shooting of one of a quartet who succeeded in liberating him from a policeman, appeared at the Fifth Precinct Station last night to answer the charges of being drunk and disorderly.

Jackson appeared at the station house with an attorney and was released on $50 bond for appearance in court today. First reports given by the police after James Campbell, colored, had been wounded fatally by Patrolman F. W Sandford were that Jackson, who is also known to the police as Will Francis, had been taken in custody after the melee which took place in Navy southeast.

The inquest into the shooting will be renewed at 11 a. m. today when Coroner J. Ramsey Nevitt will impanel another jury. The first jury disagreed Tuesday after two hours of deliberation.

Former Policeman Gets Jail Term in Larceny

James Moore, former member of the District Police Department, pleaded guilty in Police Court yesterday to a charge of simple larceny and was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail. John Abersold, jointly charged with Moore, pleaded not guilty to the charge and demanded a trial by jury.

Both men were charged after police had apprehended Moore Tuesday night and he had led them to a wooded spot where a pig and two chickens had been found to have been slaughtered. It was alleged by the police that the two men had taken the stock from the Gallaudet Farms, where both formerly had been employed.

advocated that idea all along. You can not go before Congress with divided opinion and make any progress. Business, banking and civic interests must realize this I thoroughly agree with this proposition."

J. T Exnicios, president of the Departmental Bank, thinks the idea an admirable one which should have been carried out a long time ago. "There has been too much diversification in this regard" was his comment. "Consolidation of the various interests as proposed in the plan would exert a tremendous influence.

"Any plan that unifies effort and makes organization more forceful is the one to follow" in the opinion of President William D Hoover, of the National Savings & Trust Co.

President George L. Starkey, of the National Bank, of Washington: "I believe that uniform effort is a great deal more satisfactory than divided effort. Great organizations like the chain stores are more powerful than individual agencies. It has often been said by Congress, 'When you folks can agree among yourselves come to us, but why come to us when you can not agree'"

"I have always felt that in unity there is strength," said Victor B. Deyber, president of the Second National Bank. "The plan would be most desirable for the civic development of Washington, if it could be brought about."

HOLADAY ASSIGNED TO SIMMONS' POST

Illinois House Member to Continue Present Policy Toward District.

ACQUAINTED WITH CITY

Under chairmanship of Representative William P. Holaday (Republican), of Illinois, the District subcommittee of the House appropriations committee is expected to maintain pretty much the same attitude toward the National Capital as it has under the chairmanship of Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska.

Announcement that Mr. Holaday would succeed Mr. Simmons when the latter becomes chairman of the agriculture subcommittee in December was made yesterday.

Representative Holaday has helped write three District of Columbia appropriation bills, and in the course of these labors he has seen eye to eye with Chairman Simmons.

Like Mr Simmons, Mr. Holaday thinks that a $9,000,000 lump sum each year is a fair contribution by the Federal Government toward expenses of the District government.

Like Mr. Simmons, he has turned a deaf ear to arguments that, under statutory law, the Federal Government ought to pay 40 per cent of the city's expenses.

A big, broad-shouldered fellow with a great shock of wavy hair, Mr. Holaday is personally one of the most popular men on Capitol Hill. He can tell a story and listen to one, and his office door is always open to callers.

He now has the seat that for so long was held by Uncle Joe Cannon His home is Danville, Ill., a town of 225,735 population, less than half the size of Washington. He was elected to the Sixty-eighth Congress and has been here ever since. Before this he served for fourteen years in the Illinois General Assembly.

He attended the University of Missouri and obtained his law degree from the University of Illinois In 1906 he married Miss Blanche Gorman. They have two children, Helen and William, jr.

Study of Business Urged for Traders

Head of Stock Exchange in 1930 Report Suggests Causes of Crash.

New York, May 7 (A.P.)—E. H. H. Simmons, president of the New York Stock Exchange, in his annual report covering the year 1929 suggests that investment banking houses guard against future stock market panics by studying the methods of the mercantile and industrial organizations in guaging production to public powers of consumption.

Mr. Simmons again pointed to the heavy issuance of new securities during September, particularly those of investment trusts and holding companies, as one of the immediate causes of the autumn crash, and suggested that means be developed to prevent the congestion of financial channels by the piling up of heavy loads of undigested securities on dealers' shelves.

"If overlarge dealers inventories have been a cause of both commercial and stock market panics," he said, "perhaps the financial community can benefit by methods which the mercantile and industrial community have devised in recent years to prevent congestion and crises by maintaining light inventories and constantly adjusting production to immediate demand This quite successful mercantile technique has of course been largely based upon the compilation and even the publication of relevant statistics. While stock market statistics will never of course obviate even occasionally drastic advances and declines in prices, it may be that closer attention to them might tend to prevent panics."

FIGHTERS CURB FIRE IN CATOCTIN RANGE

Blaze That Raged 72 Hours Stamped Out, Except in Isolated Spots.

RICHEY CAMP MENACED

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., May 7.—After raging nearly 72 hours the forest fire in the Catoctin Mountains, which started Sunday, was put under control early this morning. With the exception of a few places on the top of the ridge, surrounded by patrolmen, the big blaze is entirely extinguished. Fire wardens, some on foot and others on horseback, are patroling the burned area tonight to prevent a fresh outbreak.

Two crews of 20 men each from industrial plants of Frederick last night relieved 50 fire fighters who had been in the mountain since the night before. Boy Scouts and a number of deputized men were relieved at the same time. A force of 150 men from the vicinity of Catoctin Furnace cut fire lines east, west, north and south while others back fired all night. Early this morning Forest Warden Klein, who had been in the mountain since Sunday directing the fire fighters, stated that the blaze was completely under control. The fire was stopped by fire lines on the east side of the mountain within three-quarters of a mile of the fishing camp of Lawrence Richey, executive secretary of President Hoover.

Watershed Fire-Swept.

The entire west side, where the fire started, is burned over. Three-fourths of the city watershed of 8,000 acres and about 1,500 acres adjoining were swept by the flames. Dozens of times the fire jumped the fire lines and at half a dozen times leaped across Fishing Creek. No lives were lost and no buildings burned.

Aside from denuding the watershed the fire destroyed 22,000 young trees planted by the Izaac Walton League and city, on the side of the mountain. The tree planting was started three years ago for the purpose of retimbering the mountain.

10,000 Acres Burned Over.

Revised estimates today indicated that the fire burned between 9,500 and 10,500 acres. The Hamburg fire was the largest, its area being placed at 9,000 acres. About 600 acres was burned over by the Middle Point and Black Rock fires which also started Sunday. Many acres were swept by smaller fires which were controlled by fire wardens without sending in a general call.

Extreme precaution is necessary to keep down the fires, owing to the dry condition of the mountain. Two small blazes were reported today in the western section. Tonight the patrol force was reduced to about 40 men.

Sodas Held Bane Of Drug Stores

Trained Pharmacists Who Sell Sandwiches Cited by Session Speaker.

Baltimore, May 7 (A.P.).—The assertion that the "overmerchandising craze" is the most serious problem facing American druggists was made today by Dr. H. A. B. Dunning, Baltimore, the president, before the American Pharmaceutical Association.

"It has become more and more difficult," he declared, "by viewing the outward and internal appearance of many drug stores, to tell just what service they offer to the public—Whether they are drug store, department stores or tea rooms."

Dr. Edward Kremers, director of the University of Wisconsin pharmacy course, was presented the Remington medal for 1930 for outstanding contributions to pharmacy. Dr. Kremers, in an address, asked: "Why should we educate a man in the highest standard of pharmacy, only to have him go out and sell sandwiches and soda?"

ROVER WILL OPPOSE INDICTMENT ATTACK

Does Not Believe Rum Fine of Grand Juror Will Void True Bills.

POST'S STORY CHECKED

While admitting that a member of the present grand jury had paid a fine in Police Court on a liquor charge in 1927, United States Attorney Leo A. Rover announced yesterday that he would oppose any motions to quash indictments returned by the inquisitorial body because of that fact.

Announcement that a motion to quash the indictment charging G. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board of the F. H. Smith Co., with embezzling $1,136,000 was carried exclusively in The Post yesterday morning. Acting on that information, Assistant United States Attorney Nell Burkinshaw conducted an immediate investigation, according to Mr. Rover.

This, Mr. Rover said, revealed that Albert M. Thomas, a member of the grand jury on the date mentioned pleaded guilty to the second count of an information charging possession of liquor and paid a fine of $50 in lieu of 30 days in jail.

Mr. Rover also stated that records of the Police Court show that three Albert Thomases have paid fines for prohibition violations in Police Court, but that the grand jury member denies all implication except in connection with the case he admits.

Mr. Rover stated that despite the decision of the United States Court of Appeals in the case of United States vs. Rock, he does not believe that possession of liquor involves moral turpitude and that the present grand jury will continue to function as constituted until his theory is disproved.

Attorney Wilton J. Lambert, of the firm of Lambert, Yeatman, Canfield & Horning, representing Pitts, stated yesterday that the motion will be filed as soon as certain papers in connection with it can be attested before a notary.

The motion is said to be predicated on the grounds that a prohibition law violation involves moral turpitude.

Traffic Authority Ruling Requested

Pratt Tells District Heads Bride Should Pass on Question.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, yesterday told the District Commissioners that the question of authority of the traffic director, raised by the recent report of the Bureau of Efficiency, should be settled by opinion of the corporation counsel.

"It was clearly the intent of Congress that the director of traffic, in carrying out provisions of the traffic act, would be subject to the director or the major and superintendent of police," Maj. Pratt declared.

The Bureau of Efficiency, Maj. Pratt intimated, had failed to read traffic regulations prepared by the traffic director when the bureau accused the Commissioners of usurping authority of the traffic director in designating public hack stands. The regulations, the police chief said, specifically provide that parking restrictions shall not apply to public hack stands, location of which shall be designated by the Commissioners.

Now every child desires

This new, delicious cereal with a "VEGETABLE EFFECT"

It helps Mothers and children to become better pals, while healthful habits are more easily maintained.

ONE OF THE 57

CHILDREN CAN'T RESIST THIS FLAVOR SO THEY DON'T RESIST THESE BENEFITS

HEINZ of "57" fame is now helping in a new way to solve an age-old problem in thousands of homes. You'll be interested in the method because it is unique:

HEINZ now makes the daintiest of rice flakes . . . the kind your children love . . . in which a fine food-substance known to scientists as vegetable-cellulose is retained . . . a natural, edible food-substance which is part of rice itself.

In the form used by HEINZ, the preparation of this vegetable-cellulose costs much more than the rice grain itself.

When moisture is absorbed after eating, the bulk, or volume, of the cellulose is multiplied four to six times, forming a mild, gentle bulk and roughage. This is of great value especially where mothers . . . no matter how they urge . . . have difficulty in persuading children to eat vegetables in the right amounts.

NO BRAN

HEINZ Vegetable-Cellulose is the same kind of bulk and roughage that vegetables themselves contain —soft and fluffy, not harsh or irritant in any way. It is acceptable, therefore, in nearly every instance where bran might be too severe. Your physician will agree.

Think what this means to children whose health-habits are irregular . . . and to you mothers who are so concerned!

Perhaps the main secret of this method's great success lies in its attraction to the child, for he or she is conscious only of enjoying an alluring food.

Let your children try it for two weeks as a test. Serve HEINZ Rice Flakes twice daily for one week to start the benefits; once daily thereafter to maintain them. See your children brighten and improve.

Don't use in place of vegetables, which are always necessary, but in addition to them—to supplement their bulk and roughage content.

BE SURE

In ordering, remember that a patented HEINZ process is required to include this great advantage in a breakfast cereal. No other cereals of any type, therefore can offer it to you. If you want to try this new way to give bulk and roughage to your children in the most enticing form yet known, you must insist on HEINZ Rice flakes.

PURE GAIN

Naturally all of rice's energizing food value is included in HEINZ Rice Flakes, so this new feature is pure gain over any other cereal of any sort.

If not delighted by both flavor and results your grocer will gladly refund the purchase price.

Just as good for grown-ups as for children. Let your men folks try them and try them yourself.

ASK YOUR PHYSICIAN

He will tell you of the efficiency of vegetable-cellulose in the absorption of moisture and the resulting bulk and roughage.

PROMINENT REALTOR FOUND BY WIFE DYING FROM SHOT

he died at 6 o'clock at Emergency Hospital.

On September 9, 1929, a first cousin of the realtor, Miss Elizabeth Weedon, a school teacher of the District public schools, committed suicide in the same maner and for the same reason. She shot herself at the home of a friend in Frederick, Md., after a steadily losing battle to regain her health.

Besides being a prominent realtor in Washington, Md. Weedon was a director of the National Metropolitan Bank, the East Washington Savings Bank, the Real Estate Title Insurance Co., the National Union Fire Insurance Co., and secretary-treasurer of the Congress Hall Hotel Co.

He was also a director of the Columbia Hospital for Women.

Native of Virginia.

A native of Prince William County, Va., Mr. Weedon was a descendant of Gen. George Weedon, a member of George Washington's staff.

He was a member of the Washington Real Estate Board and its president in 1924, and from 1923 to 1927 was chairman of the financial committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. He was also a member of the Congressional Country Club, the Columbia Country Club, the Federal Lodge, No. 1, F. A. A. M., and St. Margaret's Episcopal Church.

Besides his wife, Mr. Weedon is survived by three sons, De Vere R. Weedon, vice president of the J. C. Wooden Co.; J. C. Weedon, jr., secretary-treasurer of the concern, and James E. Weedon; two daughters, Mrs. Frances Jewell and Miss Ruth Weedon; two brothers, Charles and Hugh Wooden, and a sister, Mrs. Nettie Weedon Tebbs.

Funeral arrangements had not been announced last night.

A maid servant was on the first floor of the Deedon home at the time, but she told potlice that she did not hear the pistol shot. It could not be determined when the act occurred, but it was believed to have been after 4 o'clock.

The bullet entered Mr. Weedon's head behind the right ear and went to his left temple.

Dr. H. W. Lawson, of 1717 N street northwest, the family physician, was summoned before police and Emergency Hospital were called. He pronounced Mr. Weedon dead upon arrival at the hospital.

His brother, Charles Weedon, told police that Mr. Weedon had been ill for the last two weeks and that he stayed home from his office yesterday. He expressed the opinion that his brother had taken his life because of despondency over this illness, which he did not explain.

In the report he submitted along with the bill extending the service of Dr. Tindall, Chairman Capper, of the Senate District committee, declared that, despite his advanced years, Dr. Tindall is "extraordinarily alert in mind and body, and is a veritable storehouse of information on the District Government and the Capital generally."

"He has served the District Government for 61 years, having first been employed as secretary to the mayor of Washington," says the report. "For many years he served faithfully and competently as secretary to the Board of Commissioners, and now he has charge of the information department at the Municipal Building.

"It is a matter of common knowledge in Washington that no man possesses more information about the city government than Dr. Tindall. His retirement would be deeply regretted by the officials of the District Government, and by the citizens of the National Capital."

American Law Institute Plans New Court Acts

A new series of model statutes designed to correct defects in criminal procedure will be discussed at the annual meeting of the American Law Institute, which opens today at the Hotel Mayflower.

The code was prepared following recommendations of a committee consisting of the late Herbert S. Hadley, former Governor of Missouri; Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, Judge Charles Nott, jr., of New York City, and William E. Mikell, of Philadelphia. The code marks the institute's frist step in a program designed to correct uncertainty, complexity and delay in American court procedure. It is expected that the entire code will be adopted during sessions which will continue through the week.

Prison Aid Bills Delayed by Blease

Senate Pases Part of Plan of Administration, but Rest Is Blocked.

(Associated Press.)

Part of the administration prison relief program was passed yesterday by the Senate but Senator Blease (Democrat), South Carolina, blocked adoption of three important measures.

The Senate approved without debate the House bill establishing a single board of parole to consist of three members with full authority to act on all paroles. Approval also was given to four other House measures, including one authorizing the use of the Public Health Service in providing medical service in the Federal institutions. Another would create additional probation officers.

Senator Blease prevented action on the bill to establish two additional Federal penal institutions to meet overcrowded conditions, asserting that it was "he President's duty to investigate" and furnish relief. Another to which he objected, blocking passage, would have reorganized the administration of Federal prisons, and the third would have provided diversification of employment of prisoners.

Unemployment Parley Hits Recessing Plan

The unemployment conference, which has been in session for several weeks at 509 G street northwest, went on record yesterday as "condemning as vicious the recessing process which deprives departmental employes of a considerable part of their monthly salaries."

In dress it's Distinction

in a cigarette it's Taste

IT'S THE UNUSUAL that distinguishes a gown. Again, it's the unusual that sets Chesterfield apart.

STYLE in a gown, "chic" in a hat—and in a Chesterfield, Taste!

TASTE IS THE REAL REASON for Chesterfield's enduring popularity . . . the better taste of choice tobaccos, mild and ripe, blended and cross-blended to a rich delicacy of flavor, unique in a cigarette—in every sense of the word . . . "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price. LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

RADICALISM'S BRIEF TRIUMPH.

Judge John J. Parker failed of confirmation in the Senate by the narrow margin of two votes. It was an accidental majority that defeated him. The radical element in the Senate gained temporary control by virtue of its vigorous attack upon a stigmatized form of labor contract, and by exciting the fears of some senators that their political futures would be in jeopardy if they voted to confirm a nominee who has been opposed by racial and socialistic groups. The vote can not be interpreted otherwise than as a blow to the independence of the judiciary.

Senator Borah made a last-minute attempt to dispose of the charge that the opponents of Judge Parker were attacking the Supreme Court. No doubt he realized that every senator who voted "nay" will have to answer to his constituents. The insurgents, he said, are not attacking the court. They insist, however, that they be allowed to dictate how the court shall interpret the Constitution. They would not abolish the judiciary, but only make judges subservient to their views. The public is not able to distinguish between this insidious effort to bring about a judicial disintegration and an attack upon the courts.

Opposition to Judge Parker ran along the same lines as the fight against Chief Justice Hughes. The unique position which the Chief Justice occupies in the judicial field gave him strength that the radicals could not overcome. But the principle involved was just the same. The insurgents have declared their intention to formulate the policy of the Supreme Court, and to excoriate any jurist who aspires to that position and does not accept their views. Should this attitude toward the courts become the general rule the independence of the judiciary would be destroyed. When the attitude of senators is determined by racial and political factions the situation becomes still more hopeless.

The insurgents would leave the President the alternative of appointing spineless judges who have done nothing to which objection could be made, or radical judges who would subvert the Constitution. But there is no indication that the President would ever appoint such a jurist. President Hoover no doubt realizes that the radicals were favored by an unusual combination of circumstances in their fight against Judge Parker. The people are overwhelmingly on the side of the President in selecting honest and able judges. Now that the Senate has wavered before the radical attack, millions of American citizens who ordinarily remain in the background will be heard from. They will not stand by and see the judicial power threatened under the false pretense of protecting human rights. Whenever the courts are weakened, individual liberty is weakened to the same degree. No unscrupulous minority will be allowed to carry out the policy that has been initiated in the rejection of Judge Parker.

The President may be relied upon to nominate a new candidate who is honest and able and whose respect and honor for the Constitution has been proved. Public opinion will call a halt to the radical campaign against the court, and the would-be judicial dictators of the Senate will not again be able to gain sufficient strength to reject a capable and conscientious judge.

AREN'T WE ALL?

For 16 years, Louis R. Gemmett, 71-year-old baseball fan of Davenport, Iowa, has been waging a single-handed campaign to have all baseball players adjudged insane. There should be two pitchers in the box at all times, he says, either of whom would be allowed to hurl the ball without first signalling the batter. The purpose of the pitcher is to deceive the batter, and team managers are crazy if they think one pitcher can fool the batter as well as could two. The players are crazy to permit the umpire to have the final say. There should be a judicial committee to act upon every disputed decision. It is crazy to call a game on account of rain. There should be a canopy suspended from balloons over every field so that play could go on no matter what the weather. In these and other respects the game of baseball is crazy, says Lon Gemmett. This week he petitioned Probate Judge Henry Horner, of Chicago, to adjudge all baseball players insane.

Maybe Lou Gemmett is right. But it also seems rather crazy that eighteen perspiring young men should be able to hold several thousand spectators spellbound by chasing a little white sphere around a carefully kept pasture. It seems rather crazy that the public should spend millions of its hard-earned cash for the privilege of sitting in uncomfortable metal seats on steaming hot summer afternoons while one team desperately strives to make runs and the other as desperately tries to keep runs from being made.

The lunacy is not confined to the players. Lou Gemmett makes his mistake in petitioning that the participants in the game be put out of the way. Who doesn't like to go crazy now and then for an afternoon of baseball? Where could Lou Gemmett hope to find a judge who isn't crazy enough to believe that baseball players are no crazier than the rest of us?

PUBLIC HEARINGS.

The Senate foreign relations committee has decided to hold public hearings on the London naval treaty. The decision will doubtless cause some uneasiness and much surprise in London and Tokyo but may establish a precedent that will establish open diplomacy as a distinctly American doctrine.

Because of the inherent delicacy of international negotiations, it has been assumed in diplomatic circles that no member of the American delegation to the London conference would be free to discuss in public what transpired at the committee meetings, informal gatherings or secret sessions. Secretary Stimson, who will be the first witness on Monday, will feel honor bound to respect every confidence and preserve every pledge of secrecy connected with the prolonged negotiations. The same will apply to Secretary of the Navy Adams and Admiral Pratt, who will follow Secretary Stimson on the stand.

There are many things that Mr. Stimson could freely discuss in public if he were free to consider only American interests. But, by the nature of things, he must consider the effect which his statements might have on the foreign negotiators with whom he was in conference. Prime Minister MacDonald, Premier Tardieu of France, Foreign Minister Briand and others would be spending anxious moments now if they believed that any member of the American delegation would disclose to the public confidential information incident to the London negotiations. It is axiomatic in diplomatic negotiations that information be not disclosed to the public without the consent of all concerned.

But there may be no reason why Secretary Stimson and other members of the delegation can not elucidate the important features of the treaty without invading the realm of confidential negotiations. There may be questions which Mr. Stimson can not in good conscience answer and the members of the committee will unquestionably respect the Secretary's judgment on these matters.

Public hearings will bring to light facts which may not redound to the credit of foreign governments in some instances. It was realized, however, that the treaty is to be publicly discussed on the floor of the Senate, at which time there will necessarily be statements made which may not be relished in Great Britain and Japan. There appeared to be no point in holding private hearings for the purpose of shielding foreign sensibilities if the debate on the floor was destined to bring out open and frank discussion of various features of the pact.

CORKS, BARRELS AND BOTTLES.

The cork, barrel and bottle decision handed down Monday by the Supreme Court of the United States may have far-reaching effect. In affirming the action of the lower courts the Supreme Court held that it is within the legal right of prohibition enforcement authorities to seize containers, barrels, corks, &c., when they are offered for sale in such a manner as to attract purchasers who want them for the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating beverages. The Prohibition Bureau is inclined to believe that it now has an adequate weapon for attacking the purveyor of home brew supplies. It is studying the decision carefully with the view of using it as the basis of a campaign against such merchants.

The decision strikes a vital blow against the bootlegger supply joint. In every city there are establishments that handle exclusively bottles, corks, labels and similar merchandise that obviously is useful only to the professional bootlegger. There can be no question but that these stocks are displayed in such a manner as to attract purchasers who will use them for unlawful purposes. But there probably will be a question as to whether the decision will affect all vendors of materials used in the home manufacture of beers and wines. The home brewer seals his concoctions in any kind of bottle that may come to hand. The decision will not stop the sale of all bottles. The home brewer purchases malt extract as often as not from the corner grocer. The decision will not stop the groceryman from selling a commodity that, although it may most frequently be used for the brewing of an unlawful beverage, has legitimate uses as well.

The "set up," or cracked ice and tumbler decision has not stopped hotels and restaurants from serving ginger ale. It has, of course, placed upon the server the burden of responsibility if his place is raided and patrons are found using the cracked ice and tumbler for liquor and it has resulted in padlock proceedings, but the practice continues. There is a decided possibility that the cork, barrel and bottle decision will be of a similar nature. It promises to drive the bootlegger supply house out of business and unquestionably it will make merchants more wary of selling malt extracts, corks, &c. But every effort will be made to find a way to offer such articles for sale without running the risk of being charged with "attracting purchasers who want them for the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating beverages." Representative Fort pointed out in his speech of last February that the courts have not yet been called upon to decide whether or not home brewing is illegal. Monday's decision probably is the first of many that will be rendered along these general lines.

COST OF NEGLIGENCE.

An unusual combination of circumstances is responsible for the disastrous fires that are sweeping over wooded country from Maine to Virginia. The woods are dry from lack of rain. The atmosphere is deficient in moisture, and the high winds of the last few days spread flames rapidly. This unfortunate combination has resulted in the loss of several lives, has left hundreds homeless, and destroyed millions of dollars worth of timber and property.

Natural phenomenon is not sufficient, however, to spread destruction of this kind. The element of human negligence is the controlling factor. Spontaneous combustion sometimes causes fires in cellars filled with rubbish, but not in open forests. Flames which are ravaging the countryside in a dozen States are virtually all the result of human carelessness. Sunday was a perfect day for motorists, campers and hikers. Campfires that were not extinguished, matches and cigarettes thoughtlessly thrown aside, grass and rubbish fires not carefully kept under control are responsible for most of this destruction.

In the dry seasons in the West, lightning is the chief cause of forest fires. But there has been no such element in these current fires. The whole responsibility for the desolation that is spreading over the countryside falls upon the careless public.

The situation is complicated by the inadequacy of fire-fighting apparatus. The hazard period is only short, and it would be very expensive to maintain a fire-fighting organization throughout the year to take care of these emergencies. As soon as foliage is completely out the fire danger disappears, or is greatly diminished. The only hope of escaping such waste of forest and destruction of property is to prevent fires. That calls for cooperation of the public.

There are only brief periods in the spring and fall when the fire hazard is great. Discarded cigarettes or brush fires that would be harmless during midsummer are extremely dangerous just now. A large number of people do not realize the difference that atmospheric and vegetation conditions make in fire hazards. The Government and the States might make a great contribution to fire prevention by giving special warning at danger times. When unusual fire hazards prevail the public should be so informed.

STATESWOMEN

From the Christian Science Monitor.

Shall it be Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick who will open the majestic gates of senatorial preferment to the women of the United States? No woman has ever been elected to its select membership, although there have been twelve women in the House of Representatives, one of whom was elected even before the enactment of the equal suffrage amendment. Once in 1922 a woman, Mrs. Rebecca L. Felton, was appointed by the Governor of Georgia to fill an unexpired senatorial term of 36 days, but actually she only managed to serve for one day in her gratuitous post. Now Mrs. McCormick, courageous in her convictions and sagacious in her politics, enters the lists, and her candidacy, coming at a time when women are rapidly raising the percentage of political offices they are holding in local and State governments, may prove a prophetic token of higher honors.

The record of the growing political power and political service of women in State government is impressive, and indicative of a trend still in its early stages. Besides the two women governors of Wyoming and Texas, and the woman mayor of Seattle—the only large American city to have elected a woman executive—women have won places in the Legislatures of 38 of the 48 States, and if any one has been led to believe that New England is a reactionary region, let it be noted that more than one-third of the women legislators are in the six New England States.

As to the remarkable rate of increase with which women are winning political positions, the National League of Women Voters has just completed a most illuminating survey touching several different States. Thus, according to this latest analysis which is representative of the prevailing tendency, the total number of women officeholders in Connecticut increased from 134 in 1925 to 652 in 1929; in Michigan, from 367 in 1927 to 793 in 1929, and in Minnesota, from 227 in 1926 to 348 in 1930.

From these figures the National League of Women Voters draws an exceedingly modest conclusion. Viewing the present influx of women into comparatively minor political offices much as their influx into comparatively minor economic positions a decade ago, they see the trend simply as "progress from the ground up." How far up? one may ask, and they are disinclined to predict. But the answer is, indeed, apparent on many sides. For one thing, it is clear that the increase in the number of women holding public office and the increase in the number of women exercising the franchise have come hand in hand, although there is no direct proof that the one has been responsible for the other. The statistics of the last presidential election revealed that women today represent approximately 45 per cent of the qualified electorate, and that of the 10,000,000 new voters of 1928, fully two-thirds were women.

The conclusion is inescapable that the women's vote is certain to play an increasingly powerful part in American politics, and although there is little evidence to show that women voters are likely to support candidates simply on the grounds of their sex, it is apparent that they are capable of registering a cohesive and perhaps decisive vote whenever the occasion demands. There are certain to be more women senators, and who is to say that the time is far distant when a woman will be presiding in the White House?

PLANTS IN ROOMS.

The belief that plants should be removed from sleeping rooms at night is entirely without foundation, according to Dr. A. F. Woods, director of scientific work in the United States Department of Agriculture. In many hospitals it is a regular practice to remove flowers and plants from the rooms at night, because it is thought that they are in some way injurious to the patients.

Instead of plants being harmful, they are beneficial, says Dr. Woods. During the day they give off oxygen and moisture and take up carbon dioxide. At night these processes slow down and small amounts of carbon dioxide are given off, but a whole greenhouse full of plants would not give off enough carbon dioxide to injuriously affect the composition of the air.

The only occasion for removing plants and flowers from sleeping rooms is in the case of poisonous plants and in cases of people who suffer from hay fever. In these cases, explains Dr. Woods, plants and flowers to which the patient is sensitive should not be in the room at any time.

ADDED LUXURIES.

There are four and twenty blackbirds on the lawn and in the trees Old Bob White and his family just passed my window by,
And I wonder did I pay for such gay comradeship as these,
Or are they happy touches, which no builder can supply.

I remember when we bargained for this house the seller said
The rooms were large and airy and the walls were strong and true,
But I'm sure the thought of blackbirds never popped into his head,
And that Old Bob White would visit here I think he never knew.
The lawn is gay this morning, I can hear the Bob Whites call,
And the blackbirds, brave and splendid, make a glorious parade,
But I think it queer the builder never mentioned them at all.
For I'm sure they're part and parcel of this house for which I paid.

When Life Becomes Easy, Men Find New Burdens to Escape Boredom.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN an ordinary man has made a success of his business and has accumulated a fortune, he continues to plan and build with undiminished enthusiasm and finds a new interest in philanthropy.

Ask him why he keeps on working and he will say: "It isn't the money. There is a fascination in doing something worth while—building, developing the country, providing work for other men. And I can do a lot of good with the money I make."

That kind of talk irritates the man made cynical and bitter by poverty.

"Rot!" says he. "These big-hearted philanthropists who devote their lives to service love money just as well as I do. They make a show of their charity because it's good advertising, but they raise prices to pay for it."

That isn't true; nor is it true, as you might suppose, that one of these men is by nature more liberal and more humane than the other.

When the rich man was poor he felt as the poor man now does—that is, he coveted money and prized it highly because he had urgent need of it, and suggestions that he share in good works irritated him because he had no money to spare.

That is the natural state of mind of a man who needs all he can earn.

But when he has become wealthy and has acquired a new viewpoint, it is equally natural for him to think other things more important than money.

It was his need that made him prize money, and it was the difficulty of getting money that made it seem a manly and worthwhile ambition.

Now the mere getting of money fails to interest him because it is too easy.

He has won his fight; he has all he needs or wants; further accumulation can afford him no thrill.

And he must find some interest or ambition or struggle that can furnish a thrill or life will be ashes in his mouth.

Thus it is that he learns to think of his business in terms of doing good and to find in philanthropy some fodder for his self-respect.

His nature hasn't changed, but only his point of view. He isn't exceptionally good by nature, nor has wealth made him exceptionally generous.

He is merely an ordinary man who has lost interest in a game that is won and now is learning a new game to find a new "kick."

There are thousands in America like him, and their devotion to "service," which is merely a new way to make life interesting, is proof enough that decent men will work unselfishly for the common good when Utopia guarantees them all they need.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

SPEAKING OF PEACE MOVES.

Under a radio noise ordinance, New York gave a radio store proprietor a jail term and a fine the other day for operating a loud speaker on a nonstop basis.

* * * *

This will be accepted throughout the United States as a more decisive step for peace than the naval limitations treaty.

* * * *

If there is any one great obstacle to peace in this country today it is the radio store loud speaker through which the entire community is perpetually sprayed with jazz music, soprano solos, sounds from the zoo, radio comedy acts and other major disturbances.

* * * *

The average radio store owner's idea of creating soothing music seems to be to combine the lion's roar and the hyena's howl with the Barbers Union Band and magnify the resultant cacophony ten thousand times.

* * * *

To thousands of Americans the experience of living near a radio store has been like having to sleep in the rehearsal hall of an amateur brass band.

* * * *

"Louder and crazier!" has been the radio dealer's motto, and it has seemed to give him great delight to observe neighboring storekeepers being carried away from nervous exhaustion, radio shock and total collapse of the inner ear.

* * * *

In a Southern town about a year ago a man who couldn't stand it any longer, took a shotgun and blazed away at a loud speaker across the street, rendering it null and void and giving the owner the scare of his life. The marksman was arrested, but discharged by the judge with compliments of the season and an expression of regret that he hadn't used a cannon.

* * * *

With the realization that the loud speaker had become one of the country's most pressing problems, many States have proposed legislation embracing everything from a $2 fine to the electric chair, but New York is one of the first cities to give a radio store proprietor 30 days in jail and a $50 fine.

* * * *

Even then the neighbors weren't satisfied. They favored life at hard labor.

* * * *

Let the good work go on. The steel riveter has his justification, the musical automobile horn user has his excuses and the lady who vocalizes near an open window has her explanations, but the fellow who deliberately uses a loud speaker on a ten-hour-day schedule hasn't an alibi in the world.

* * * *

Put him in the hoosegow. And, if possible, give him a noisy cell.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Not Unified Control, but the Provision of Satisfactory Means of Transportation Other Than the Private Automobile Offers the Solution to the Traffic Problem.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is likely that unified control of traffic will help a good deal in lessening the evils of automobile congestion. But with respect to anything like a positive cure I have my doubts.

The unsatisfactory traffic conditions of downtown Washington may be improved only by providing, on a generous scale, for means of transportation other than the private automobile. A cross-town east and west car or bus line for upper Washington would relieve the situation.

Merely as a preliminary suggestion I have in mind a transportation line from Great Falls extending eastward with a bridge over Rock Creek valley and on through Soldiers' Home Park as far as the Maryland line or farther. Possibly two lines would not be too many. Thus extensive outlying sections of the metropolitan area might be reached and tens of thousands among those who are now compelled to use the automobile would gladly avail themselves of an easily accessible and adequate bus or street car service.

The trouble with our present street car system is that its trackage, except for greater length, is like it was more than 75 years ago when Washington sprawled close along the bank of the Potomac. The District Commissioners should at once consider the advisability of a survey relating to a comprehensive public transportation system suited to the needs of a modern, automobile-congested city. FRED. JORDAN.

Thousands of War Veterans Have Not Been Adequately Compensated or Properly Assisted—Congress Should Act for Their Relief.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Somehow or other the question of settling war veterans' problems keeps recurring without any substantial gain being made. The experience of a veteran getting quick and efficient service on his disability records seems as bad at the present time as it was at any period since the close of the war, as exemplified in the cases of thousands of disabled veterans awaiting action on their claims. Today 50 per cent of the invalid war veterans in Government hospitals are not drawing any compensation for their disablements. Six thousand neuropsychiatric and 32,000 tubercular former service men, at least, are known to be living without receiving any aid from the Government. In my opinion it is an unheard of state of affairs for a rich Nation to let its war cripples roam around in circumstances of poverty. Inevitably many of these vets have drifted into institutions, jails, even penitentiaries, due to disabilities incurred as a result of their war-time service that unfitted them to engage in any kind of useful employment.

Legislation in the veterans' interest should be during this session of Congress. JOHN JONES.

This Promises to Be the "Swatingest" Season Ever—Baseball's Ping-Pong Days Are Dead and Buried.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I can not refrain from calling attention to another instance strengthening the probability that this is to be a baseball season of remarkable home-run fecundity.

In Monday's 12-inning game between St. Louis and the Athletics, the latter won, 4 to 3. And the four runs of the Athletics were four-baggers—two slammed by Boley, one in the third and another in the fifth inning; one clouted by Haas in the sixth, and the winning four-bagger socked by Simmons in the twelfth.

The piling up of homers this early in the season is encouraging, at least to the red-blooded fanatics who don't think they get their money's worth if bats are not trumps. With the advent of settled, hot, home-run weather it may be demonstrated that the home-run era of baseball has arrived. I hope so.

The low-score, ping-pong variety of baseball which was once the delight of experts was all very well in its way. But what the embattled fans of the present-day demand is something more heroic. H. W. BLEACHER.

Blue Laws Crop Up to Work Hardship on Busy People and Deprive Those Who Seek Innocent Amusement.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Arlington County Virginians have invoked a "blue" law restraining a Clarendon resident from painting his house on Sunday and have preferred charges against him in the Clarendon Police Court.

To keep up with the times Baltimore County Marylanders brought out their "blue" law, charging aviation officials with "commercializing the Sabbath" by carrying passengers through the air for hire. This matches the Arlington law and it is now up to Arlington officials to come again.

It is difficult to imagine situations where the working of "blue" laws don't work hardships on some one! What do Arlington officials say to the busy salaried man with no time for his house painting during his week? What do Baltimore County officials say to passengers having no time for aviation during their week? Would the former be sentenced forever to a lower economic level, thereby diminishing his usefulness to his community, and the latter forever to the horse and buggy?

Regrets That United States Chamber of Commerce Opposes Farm Board.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just read with a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction your editorial entitled "Business Should Help." It is to be regretted that the United States Chamber of Commerce has taken such a position as that mentioned in your editorial. I believe the Farm Board will accomplish considerable good if unhampered by selfish opposition. W. A. ROBERTS.

$377,036,000 NAVAL OUTLAY REQUESTED

House Committee Declines to Include Pact Plan in Report.

CUTS CRUISER PROGRAM

(Associated Press.)

In recommending an outlay of $377,036,000 for the Naval Establishment during the fiscal year 1931, the House appropriations committee yesterday declined to incorporate in its formal report to the House statements forecasting economies as a result of the London naval treaty.

The statements were prepared by Representative French (Republican), Idaho, chairman of the subcommittee that drafted the bill and report. They were stricken out, Mr. French said, because the committee felt it would be premature to anticipate savings until the Senate acted upon the naval pact.

The committee approved the elimination of $400,000 recommended by the Budget Bureau for beginning work on the third group of five of the fifteen cruiser program, which, under the naval treaty, would not be constructed.

Substitutes for Language.

It substituted for the language praising the American delegates for their endeavors at the conference and estimating savings which the treaty might bring, a statement that "the committee did not undertake to pass upon possibilities that might flow therefrom in such a way as to indicate commitments."

With reefrence to the deduction of the $400,000 cruiser fund the committee said, "The bill has been phrased to give authority to draw upon available funds for 'increase of the Navy,' so that in the event the treaty is not ratified, it will be possible to avoid a lapse of the authority to proceed with their construction.

The bill was delayed several months by administration leaders pending the outcome of the naval parley in the hope that economics might be effected. However, the measure represents an increase of $14,851,000 over the current appropriation. It carries $57,365,000 for ship construction and improvement. Of $49,400,000 set aside for ship building, $35,250,000 to be expended for ten 8-inch gun cruisers, the remainder for the construction of submarines V-4 to V-9, inclusive, and the completion of the 1924 cruiser program. An allotment of $7,400,000 was set aside for modernization of the battleships Pennsylvania and Arizona.

84,500 Enlisted Men.

A Navy of 84,500 enlisted men, 8,400 line, 2,011 staff and 1,455 warrant officers; a Marine Corps of 18,000 enlisted men and about 1,200 officers, and considerable public work at naval stations and navy yards was provided for.

The bill provided $32,320,000 for the Bureau of Aeronautics with authority to contract for airplanes to cost $10,000,000 as the last outlay for the five-year naval air expansion program.

Authority was granted President Hoover to expend $10,000,000 of any unexpended naval appropriation for sinking offset wells to protect the Elk Hills naval petroleum reserve in California from being drained by private producing companies on adjacent lands. The sum of $175,000 was set aside for Secretary Adams to care for the petroleum reserves in California, Wyoming and Alaska.

Under the allotment of $177,486,000 to the Bureau of Supply and Accounts, the pay and subsistence of the Navy was fixed at $156,484,000, while $16,000,000 of the $25,505,000 appropriation for the Marine Corps was for pay.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

It goes without saying that in the light of the high indignation that was expressed by Republican senators over Senator Ashurst's judgeship bartering charge, that political commentators and political students must reconstruct their understanding of American politics.

The charge was a dud, of course, as it was known it would be. The surprise is that such indignation was expressed because it was made.

Senator Allen's indignation has seldom mounted higher; Senator Fess ingenuously, or was it ingeniously, insisted that it was a direct reflection upon the President.

* * * *

To say that a judgeship offer had been made for a vote meant only one thing, he insisted, and that meant that the President had offered it, because he is the only man with authority to make such an offer. He is the appointive power.

Frankly, this is all very amazing. One has read, not once but a hundred times, when some appointment turned out to be bad that, of course, the President acted more or less perfunctorily in the great mass of appointments; that of necessity he had to rely upon his advisers, men whose particular business it was to deal with them—and these men are usually very politically minded men.

* * * *

Most of us have gone along all these years writing and acting on assumption that patronage was the backbone of the party organization.

We have always understood, wrongly it now appears, that those senators who played ball with the administration got the patronage and in a campaign, administration assistance. Perhaps no one was ever so blunt as to say to another:

"Vote with me and you will get the patronage."

More delicate language would undoubtedly be used, but language, after all, would not be necessary, because it is the history of political parties that administration senators get administration favors; not only is it the history of political parties, but of individual men.

If this is not the case, isn't it passing strange that Senators Borah, Norris and La Follette, just to take a few, have nothing to say about patronage in their States, while Senator Allen most certainly has in his.

* * * *

Is it not history, too, that senators who had served well, but who had got caught in a political groundswell have been appointed to the bench and to other high posts. And in many instances not without good reason, either. Because ours would be a more hectic Government than it is if senators had to respond to every little clamor or face political retirement if they did not.

Of course the worthy should be taken care of in instances of that kind.

Then why the indignation and such arguments as Senator Fess made at a little charge of a judgeship offer? And especially just after the senators have been through their periodical practical business, to say the least, tariff trading, which is—well, a very

the members of the Senate, led by the Vice President."

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, who also was a delegate to London, joined Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, in escorting Mr. Reed into the chamber.

Mr. Reed reported that Mr. Hoover is confident of ratification of the treaty by the Senate.

There has been little disclosure of the Senate's attitude toward the pact pending the hearings. However, Senator Borah has indicated a friendly view. Senator Hale has expressed some concern over its effect on the big cruiser program for this Government.

Build to Full Quota.

Once the treaty is before the Senate, leaders believe it can be disposed of within two weeks.

Talking off the floor later, Senator Reed agreed with Senator Robinson that it would be well for this Government to build up to its full quota strength allowed under the treaty.

The Pennsylvanian said this would call for a seven-year program estimated to cost $100,000,000 annually. He believed this program would bring the American Navy to a full parity with Great Britain.

There has been no intimation by the administration of its attitude toward a new building program to meet the deficiencies in the parity as mapped out at the London parley. However, there are indications from the big navy group in the Senate that if such a promise for construction is forthcoming there will be no opposition to the treaty.

Representative Britten (Republican), Illinois, chairman of the House naval committee, did not introduce his billion-dollar naval construction measure yesterday because Secretary Adams was called from the city. He wants to confer again with the Secretary before determining finally the exact terms of the legislation.

FAVORABLE REPORT GIVEN MOTOR BILL

New Jersey Commissioner Hits Provisions of Similar Measure.

SPECIMEN CASE IS CITED

The House District committee yesterday reported favorably upon the McLeod financial responsibility bill, aimed to insure motorists against reckless and careless drivers.

In principle the bill which is so close to being fastened upon Washington motorists is the same as that in effect in New Jersey. Its enactment in that State has been one of the loudest boasts of the A. A. A.

The growing revolt against the law in New Jersey is due to the fact that, in promoting the sale of insurance, it punishes the innocent motorist along with the guilty. The common specimen case proving this point is cited by Harold G. Hoffman, New Jersey motor vehicle commissioner, who "inherited" the law from his predecessor. The case cited by Mr. Hoffman, who also is a member of Congress, follows:

"A motorist of the most sober, thoughtful and careful type is driving along on a wide road, well within the speed limit. A drunken driver approaching wildly from the rear strikes the first machine. The second driver unquestionably is solely responsible for the accident. Yet, both have to guarantee their financial responsibility for three years. Why? Because the law says nothing about responsibility for accidents. It reads that every motorist 'concerned' in an accident shall be the prey of the insurer.

"Innocent and guilty are both obviously 'concerned' in every mishap.

"The dire consequences to the innocent do not end there, however. The insurance companies, under the law, punish him still further. For one thing, he loses his advantageous merit rating for not having had an accident in driving. For another, should he already carry insurance, the company charges him a fee of 10 per cent of the premium for providing him with an affidavit establishing proof of his coverage."

Escaped Patient Captured.

Samuel Craig, 35 years old, colored, who escaped about a month ago from Gallinger Hospital after being sentenced for 90 days at the District Jail, was apprehended yesterday on Q street, near First northwest, by W. E. Stein, superintendent of the Occoquan Wharf, and William Bean, guard of the jail.

Haiti Politicians Fight Over Fires

Port au Prince Blazes Laid to Incendiarism; Local Quarrel Blamed.

Port au Prince, Haiti, May 7 (A.P.).—Word reached here today that charges of incendiarism that passed between two groups of politicians at Jacmel Monday night resulted in a disturbance that caused minor injuries to 20 persons. The Garde d'Haiti had restored order by yesterday morning.

The charges followed upon the outbreak of several fires in Port au Prince last month. The home of Col. Richard Cutts, United States Marine Brigade commander, was destroyed the night of April 25, while a motion picture theater and two adjoining houses burned April 30.

It was said that the Jacmel affair was in no way directed against the American occupation, but merely was a local quarrel.

Mrs. Blake's Will Provides for Four

Three Children of First Marriage Not to Share in Property.

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—Mrs. Katherine Blake, wife of Dr. Joseph A. Blake, of East Brook, Me., and former wife of Clarence H. Mackay, left her entire estate to four children of her second marriage, her will, filed today, revealed.

The estate, valued at "over $100,000," will be divided among Katherine, Joan, Mary and William Blake, of New York.

Her three children by her first marriage, Ellin Berlin, wife of Irving Berlin; Katherine O'Brien and John William Mackay, receive no legacies, the will explains, "because they are amply provided for under the terms of a trust deed made by their grandfather, John William Mackay, at the time of my marriage to his son, Clarence H. Mackay."

Atlantic Fleet Comes Home to Hudson River

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—With pennants flying and guns booming an answer to shore batteries, the Atlantic fleet swept in from the sea today and lay anchored tonight along Riverside Drive in the Hudson River.

From Fifty-seventh street to Yonkers the vessels stretched in gray silhouette against the lofty Palisades.

Ashore most of 30,000 bluejackets were greeting the girls they left behind last spring and stretching sea legs cramped by the winter months at maneuvers in the Caribbean.

Grandson of Millet Arrested.

Paris, May 7 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The arrest today of Jean Charles Millet, grandson of the famous painter Millet, and of the copyist Cazeau, brings to a head what still looks like one of the biggest scandals connected with the sale of spurious art works ever brought to light here.

Envoy Castle And Wife Will Be Home Soon

Mission at Tokyo Ended Successfully by U. S. Diplomat.

By JEAN ELIOT.

SAILING from Yokohama for the United States on May 27, Mr. William R. Castle, jr., United States Ambassador to Japan, and Mrs. Castle may be expected in Washington early in June. They are now visiting in Kobe, Mr. Castle's special task of maintaining contact with Japanese officials while the London Naval Conference was in progress being successfully completed.

Mr. Castle was appointed as Special Ambassador to Japan for the duration of the London conference and, although the Japanese are said to have hoped that he would elect—or be elected—to retain the post permanently, his decision to return at this time caused no surprise.

He will resume his post as Assistant Secretary of State. In the past Mr. Castle has had supervision of European affairs. But a suggestion that he is to have charge of Far Eastern affairs in the future might be read between the lines of his farewell speech to the America-Japan Society of Osaka. In this he said that President Hoover had sent him to Tokyo for two reasons—"to keep thoroughly informed as to public opinion in Japan" during the London Conference and to study the field in Japan in order that his knowledge might be of use in the State Department.

The extent of the role played by Mr Castle in maintaining cordial relations between the United States and Japan during the naval conference may never be known. But he has earned the respect of the Japanese and of the American colony in Japan.

Mr. and Mrs. Castle have taken passage on the President Jackson.

By next autumn the new house which Mr. and Mrs. Castle are building in Washington will probably be ready for them. This is in S street hard by the home of Senator and Mrs. David Aiken Reed, which is also nearing completion. The Reeds and Castles are old friends. And it is interesting to recall that it was Senator Reed who conducted negotiations with the Japanese delegation in London during the naval conferences, his friendship with Mr. Tsuneo Matsudaira, member of the Japanese delegation, Japanese Ambassador to Great Britain and former Ambassador to the United States, contributing in no small measure to the continuous spirit of good will. This friendship was formed on the golf links of Washington and renewed on the golf links near London.

Mr. Albert Henry Washburn, who had been serving as United States Minister to Austria, was appointed Ambassador to Japan, but death claimed him just as he was preparing to leave his post in Vienna.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson have taken a box for the annual polo ball, sponsored by the War Department Polo Club, which will be given at the Willard on Monday, May 26, and will be one of the gayest of springtime events. Since he was Secretary of War years ago, Secretary Stimson, who is a keen sportsman, has been interested in fostering polo in the Army.

Other box holders for the ball are the Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. F. Trubee Davison, the Chief of Staff and Mrs. Charles P. Summerall and Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis.

Patronesses for the ball are Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, representative Ruth Baker Pratt, Mrs. John R. Williams, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. Henry F. Dimock and Mrs. Robert E. Lee.

Dryden, Mrs. McCook Knox, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and Mrs. Harrison Brand.

Three Mothers Agree

When mother is tired, nervous or ill the whole home is upset. For her family's sake, every mother wants to be well and strong. These three women tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps them to care for their families.

Mrs. H. Dolhonde, 6318 York St., New Orleans, Louisiana

"Before my last baby was born, I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got such good results that I named her Catherine Lydia. I have six older children and five grandchildren, too. I am now taking the Vegetable Compound again because of my age. I eat and sleep better and I do all my housework, and my washing. I will do my best to answer letters."

Mrs. Harold Goodnow, 36 Cane St., Fitchburg, Massachusetts

"I cannot praise your medicine enough. After my baby came I was rundown. I had to go to bed often through the day. I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I felt like a different woman. If any mother has those tired feelings I advise her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. Lloyd R. Blasing, 115 So. Ohio St., Anaheim, California

"After my baby came I was so nervous and tired that I felt miserable. One day a booklet was left at our door and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now on my fourth bottle and I feel much stronger. It has helped me in every way and I feel sure that other women in rundown condition will pick up if they will only take a few bottles."

CAVALIER PROPERTY RECEIVER IS ASKED

Apartments' Bond Owners Want D. R. Crissinger Ousted as Trustee.

SMITH CO. AFFAIRS CITED

John H. and Minnie L. Baggs, of Denton, Md., and W. L. Whitehurst, of Norfolk, Va., yesterday requested the District Supreme Court to appoint a receiver for the Cavalier Apartments at 3500 Fourteenth street northwest. All the plaintiffs tell the court that they are owners of first mortgage bonds on the apartment, which formerly was known as Hilltop Manor.

In addition to asking for the appointment of a receiver the plaintiffs ask that Daniel R. Crissinger, former comptroller of the currency, be removed as a trustee under the bond issue on the building. It is alleged that he is not fit to remain as a trustee because prior to his indictment on a mail fraud charge in connection with the operations of the F. H. Smith Co. he was an officer of that firm, receiving $25,000 annually, according to the allegation.

The court is told that the property did not cost more than $1,400,000 and that it is encumbered on the record to the extent of $3,350,000. Charge is made that Henry C. Maddux, of the Maddux Hotels, is operating the building with instructions to turn over to Smith Co. the proceeds. It also is alleged that amortization and other charges are not being taken care of to the detriment of the bond holders.

Codefendants in the suit are the F. H. Smith Co., the Columbia Trustee & Register Corporation, Daniel R. Crissinger, G. Bryan Pitts, the Berkshire Corporation, Henry C. Maddux and the Maddux Hotels, Inc.

Attorneys Robert H. McNeil, of Washington; Alan Goldsborough, of Denton, Md., and Old & Brockenbrough, of Norfolk, Va., are counsel for the plaintiffs.

Patrol Protects Filipino Workers

Washington State Officials Take Steps to Aid Islanders.

Seattle, Wash., May 7 (A.P.).—State highway police and sheriff's deputies patroled highways of the White River Valley near here tonight to prevent a recurrence of demonstrations against Filipino laborers, who were driven from their bunk houses last night by white raiders, presumably opposed to the islanders working on produce farms.

The officers were selected today by Capt. Owen McGill, of the State highway patrol and Sheriff Claude C. Bannick, who said that the Filipinos must be and would be protected. Capt. McGill said many of the imported workers were kidnaped in their night clothing and carried for several miles in automobiles and then liberated with a warning to stay away from the produce ranches, where it is declared they have been working for half the wages white men demand.

None of the Filipinos was harmed and officials believe the trouble is over.

Why Ice Cream Is So Popular

ASK THE YOUNGSTER or the young lady receiving a de luxe pint package to take home. Then ask yourself if you ever saw young persons or older folks eating ice cream without smiles on their faces.

Ice cream and frowns simply do not go together!

It may be because ice cream was originally a Southern product—it originated in Baltimore—or because the Southerners learned how to make it best, but the fact remains that this section is the Ice Cream Principality of America.

The Velvet Kind

sums up all the knowledge and skill, all the purity of content and delicacy of flavor, that this prolific section has been able to bestow upon this wonderful dessert since the first freezer was made.

Authorities on nutrition long have been calling attention to ice cream as a health food. Yet the difficulty of procuring fine ice cream without making it at home has kept it in the class of "delicacies" in many cities.

The Velvet Kind Ice Cream is made according to standards approved by the country's best housekeepers, doctors and diet experts. Southern Dairies ice cream plants are paragons of sanitary cleanliness. Methods of freezing are modern and scientific. Purest, richest milk and cream are used. Flavors and fruits are the best obtainable—you could have no better at home.

The innate goodness and tempting taste of The Velvet Kind Ice Cream are responsible for the growing appetite. Tonight is a good time to try it.

TELEPHONE USERS

The new dial telephone system in downtown Washington has been in service since midnight last Saturday.

Naturally there was congestion for a few hours on Monday morning, due to its novelty, but, aside from that, the service has been practically normal.

The smooth functioning of the new system could not have been possible without the fine co-operation which the public has given to the Telephone Company and for which we wish to express our sincere appreciation.

The dial equipment in our new building at 730 12th Street N. W., presents a number of interesting features and, believing that many of our patrons would like to see it in actual operation, we have arranged to open the building to the public this evening and tomorrow evening (Thursday and Friday), between the hours of 5 and 10 P. M.

We shall be glad to have you call at that time. You will find guides at the door waiting to take you through the building.

FORMER NUN, RICH, RENOUNCES CONVENT

Woman, Freed From Vows to Fight for Estate, Now Will Not Return.

HAS $1,500,000 LEGACY

St. Louis, May 7 (A.P.).—Assured of an inheritance worth at least $1,500,000, Sister Philomene, who was released from her vows as a nun here in 1926 to fight for the estate, now has decided not to return to the cloistered life as she once planned, according to an announcement by her attorney, William P. Hubbard.

Information received here was that she was assured of financial independence by an agreement of settlement filed in California Superior Court yesterday awarding her a share in the estate of her late father, Georges Lemesneger, rich Los Angeles grape grower and land owner.

Her attorney said she will remain Miss Jeanne Lemesneger, wealthy land owner of Los Angeles. It had been previously announced that if victorious in her court fight she planned to return to poverty and to the anonymity of a nun in the Convent of the Good Shepherd here. She now is living in Glendale, a suburb of Los Angeles, near which is the site of the large vineyard which made much of the fortune of her father.

The mother superior at the convent here said she had heard nothing from the former Sister Philomene for a long time and did not know her plans.

Miss Lemesneger was moved to action and to give up her life as a nun when her stepmother sold the valuable tract of land for $1,000,000 and, taking $200,000 as a down payment, went to Paris to live with a daughter. Miss Lemesneger joined forces with James P. Murnane, widower and heir of her late sister, Louise, in a legal fight for their share of the estate under her father's will.

The result of the four years of litigation is that Miss Lemesneger, now 39, and Murnane each have received an undisputed one-third interest in the tract of land, now estimated to be worth $5,000,000 or more, the remaining third being held by the estate of the late Countess Fraval de Coatparquet, who was Yvonne Lemesneger. Sale of the property was abandoned and the property repossessed by the estate when the purchaser defaulted in his payments.

St. Louis Firm Affects $57,000,000 Combine

St. Louis, May 7 (A.P.).—The Ely & Walker Drygoods Co. last night announced acquisition of the Watts-Ritter Co., of Huntington, W. Va., and the Walton N. Moore Drygoods Co., of San Francisco, giving the combined units an annual sales volume of more than $57,000,000.

While officials declined to comment on further pending deals, it was understood that the merger was the first step in a plan to develop a Nation-wide system of wholesale and manufacturing house with an annual turnover in excess of $100,000,000.

Assets of both the Walton N. Moore and the Watts-Ritter Companies are being taken over by exchange of common stock of Ely & Walker after the outstanding preferred stock of the other two concerns is retired. Transfer of all assets is expected to be completed by June 1. The three companies will continue to operate separately under their present managements.

Op the Rules of Traffic
By WILLIAM ULLMAN

It is not enough merely to give a signal when pulling out from a parallel parking space. The traffic regulations of the District require that the driver leaving the curb shall wait until such time as he can pull out without inconveniencing or slowing through vehicles.

Obstruction of traffic is the thing that this regulation is designed to prevent. Giving the right of way to through traffic rather than to the car leaving the parking space means that only one instead of a large number is retarded.

Example—A car is parked parallel to the curb, with plenty of space in front to permit the driver to leave with one sweep. He extends his arm in signal and drives ahead, gradually pulling out into the middle of the thoroughfare. If he forces another car to swerve or slow, he has violated the law.

Kidnapers Demand $20,000 in Ransom

St. Louis Merchant Missing Since Monday Night, Police Reveal.

St. Louis, May 7 (A.P.).—Jacob Godlove, reputed wealthy North St. Louis merchant, was kidnaped Monday night and is held for $20,000 ransom, police revealed today, after a trap set for the extortionists last night failed to catch any one. The abduction is the ninth kidnaping for ransom in the St. Louis district in recent months.

Godlove, 62, proprietor of a large neighborhood dry goods store, disappeared after escorting his head clerk, Miss Marie Brockrieten, to her home. His son, Ralph A. Godlove, 25, reported he received a letter through the mails yesterday demanding $20,000 ransom, the money to be placed in a box in a display window in the son's women's wear shop here. Police set a trap, but no one appeared.

The investigation continued today with fifteen detectives asigned to the case.

Sound Film Firm Forms in Europe

Max Reinhardt Group Buys Control of Distributing Company.

Berlin, May 7 (A.P.).—In line with their project to build a film combine that will supply Europe with talking pictures made by and for Europeans, the Max Reinhardt Curtis Melnitz group today acquired the distributing facilities of the Terra Film Co. from the German dye trust.

The first pictures distributed by the new owners it was said, probably will be a Reinhardt talking film version of Offenbach's "Vie Parisienne" and two operettas scheduled to be produced by Herr Tietjen, general superintendent of the Prussian state opera.

The organizers expect eventually to draw representative stars and producers of all European countries into the new organization.

Warrants Issued for Oil Men.

Oklahoma City, May 7 (A.P.).—Announcement of the appointment of a receiver for the Universal Oil & Gas Co. and the issuance of warrants for the arrest of nine of its officials on charges of using the mails to defraud was made today by Roy St. Lewis, United States district attorney.

139-PLANE CLUSTER THRILLS NEW YORK

Bombers, Observers and Scouts Soar Over Metropolis in Mock Attack.

SALUTE ANCHORED SHIPS

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—In close formed ranks like a flight of birds, an air fleet of 139 Navy planes swept over the city today in a spectacular demonstration.

Taking off from the aircraft carriers Lexington, Saratoga and Langley at Norfolk, Va., yesterday and today the fleet kept rendezvous over Staten Island shortly before noon and then flew over the city in a mock attack.

At 3,000 feet in Hollow Square flew the bombers, great, powerful air birds capable of carrying tons of death in their fuselages.

Slightly above them were the observation planes and scouts and high in the clouds, playing hide and seek through the vagrant masses of fleecy white, were the tiny, single-seated fighters, protecting their big cousins from a possible air attack from abive.

Out of the harbor mists and smoke they swept, roared up Manhattan Island, the sounds of their motors stilling the din of earthbound traffic below, and then turned and swept back south again. They dipped in salute over the Atlantic fleet, which had preceded them to town by only a few minutes and lay anchored in the Hudson River.

Turning east after their flight over the city the air fleet landed at Curtiss Field, Valley Stream, Long Island, where they are to spend tonight and tomorrow night.

Thursday they will fly North over Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, returning here for the night and taking off Friday morning for their floating nests off Norfolk.

Olga Edwards Regains Custody of Her Child

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—On her first day of freedom after having spent several weeks in jail awaiting sentence on conviction of attempted extortion, Olga Edwards, former dancer, regained the custody of her 6-year-old son, Lee, today in children's court. In ordering the boy returned to Miss Edwards, Justice Samuel D. Levy said that she had been "a good mother" to him.

Miss Edwards, who yesterday was placed on five years probation, was found guilty of attempting to extort money from Nathan L. Amster, wealthy traction magnate, whom, she alleges, is the father of her son.

Robbers Tie Up Women And Get $50,000 Gems

Chicago, May 7 (A.P.).—Two men posing as refrigerator repair men entered the hotel apartment of Sigmund Livingston today, bound Mrs. Livingston and a maid to chairs, and stole jewelry valued at $50,000. Mr. Livingston is vice president of a clothing firm. After they left Mrs. Livingston edged her way to a telephone, knocked the receiver off with her head and gave the alarm.

A graduated pearl and diamond necklace worth $25,000 were among the jewelry stolen.

Young Plan Given Italy's Approval

Only Great Britain Is Left to Ratify Proposal on War Debts.

Rome, May 7 (A.P.).—Italy today ratified the Young plan as evolved by the two Hague reparations conferences in 1929. The ratification is effective as of May 5, 1930.

With Italy's approval registered, all the big nations but Geat Britain involved in the reparations question have accepted the Young plan. When Great Britain has approved, the great postwar problem of Germany's indebtedness will have been formally settled.

The Bank for International Settlements will then be able to go forward with business. It was recently organized, and officers were elected, at Basel, Switzerland.

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets help arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, people rarely suffer from indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Try Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like.

Too Much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion, as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H Phillips, since 1875.

Let's buy a BOX OF Candy

There's a place in every normal diet for candy

NOWHERE else in the world are candies made of such pure ingredients or under such sanitary conditions as in the United States. The immaculate and inviting way in which they are offered makes them a pleasure to buy.

And what a variety to choose from! There are those made of chocolate, nuts and fruit. As you eat any of these you receive the food value of the special ingredient in addition to the flavor which the sugar gives.

At the end of a meal, a piece of candy is ideal. The sweet goodness satisfies the appetite without taxing the digestive system. For the healthy child, candy at the end of a meal is dietetically correct.

The demand of the system for sugar should not be denied. Sugar comes to us in fruits and vegetables. If such are lacking in sweetness when you get them, a dash of sugar will make them more palatable. Stewed and fresh fruit often need sugar. Try a pinch of sugar in cooking tomatoes, peas and carrots. Add a dash of sugar to the salad dressing. Sugar sprinkled on cereal makes it taste much better. And desserts—puddings, custards or ice cream—belong in every diet. The Sugar Institute.

"A bit of sweet makes the meal complete"

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

ESTIMATES as to what radio entertainment costs to stage have been frequently guessed at, but here, we believe, are the first definite figures:

The twelve most expensive programs on the air, according to the National Broadcasting Co., that is to say the average weekly expenditure for talent, exclusive of station and wire charges, are the following:

*American Home Banquet and Puccini Opera Programs	$9,050
Will Rogers and orchestra	6,000
Coca Cola program	4,000
Sunshine (Rudy Vallee) Hour	4,000
True Story Hour	3,300
General Electric Hour (Damrosch)	2,800
Sieberling Singers	2,700
Chase & Sanborn	2,500
Eveready Hour	2,500
Majestic Hour	2,500
Empire Builders	2,000
Armour program	1,320

*Recently discontinued.

It will be noted that "Amos 'n' Andy," generally credited with receiving $100,000 a year and being the highest paid radio stars, are not included in the above group.

INTRODUCED with the great beating of the bass drum and expected to be something different, the "Plane of Dreams" program Monday night proved to be more of the same.

It was modeled after the "Magic Carpet," excepting that the imaginary journey from country to country was made in an aeroplane. The musical setting was very commonplace.

The only novelty was the whirling propeller effect. This would have been more realistic if it had been louder as in the British aviators performance broadcast from London on Christmas Day.

Reports from listeners are that WEAF is experiencing several "dead spots" in the New York and New Jersey area.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick will again be on the air tomorrow (WMAL—5 p. m.).

THE appointment of James W. Baldwin, chief clerk of the Justice Department, a lawyer, as secretary of the Federal Radio Commission is unusual in that it was from a civil service list, apparently has no political angle, and evidently made on merit.

Of late the commission has been acquiring the reputation of being more of less of a political dumping ground. However, it would seem that they have about enough lawyers there and that it might be a good thing to add somebody now and then who knows something about radio as well.

The first time a Congressional memorial service has ever been broadcast will be by Columbia next Thursday at the rites in the House for the fifteen members of the Senate and House who died within the past year.

THERE has been a comeback as a result of Columbia thrusting a microphone into the hands of a negro lifer (who was afterwards given $500 as a reward for his work) who broadcast a news story of the Columbus fire while the prison was still burning.

In retaliation for this invasion of the spot news field, Joseph M. Patterson, of the New York Daily News, has cut out radio comment, names of commercial programs in his paper, according to Variety, and will eliminate anything further which may be considered a plug or boost for radio.

The truth may now be told at what happened at the radio fashion show, during which Barbary Newberry, "the girl with the most beautiful legs in the world," appeared.

The program came here through WMAL. In their eagerness to hear everything, listeners strained their ear drums. But not a sound was forthcoming. Dead silence hung like a pall. The loud speaker remained mute. Then someone at the studios in New York happened to think about running back to the engineer's department. He was at his post as usual. Yes, indeed.

But not working. He had not even turned on the switch. He was deeply absorbed. There he sat gazing at the program bearing a large portrait of "the girl with the most beautiful &c., &c., &c."

From the roof of their new building in Alexandria WJSV will have a choice spot to broadcast a description of the 134 navy airplanes en route south at about 10:45 tomorrow morning.

Willard Burton, chief announcer, will be aided by Lieut. Comdr. Frank D. Wagner, of the Bureau of Aeronautics.

FROM the Woodstock (Va.) Times: "The Sunday school teacher was having her class recite the names of the books of the Old Testament and they had got as far as Amos. 'What comes after Amos?' asked the teacher.

"'Oh, I know,' exclaimed one excited little girl—'Andy.'"

What Today Means to You

"TAURUS."

IF May 8 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:15 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 3 p. m., from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to noon, and from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m.

The fruits of this date will not be harvested until in the distant future. Man, as the poet points out must not only be still achieving, still pursuing; he must also learn to labor and to wait. Family difficulties and extravagant expenditures.

Parents will not hold too tight a rein on the child born on this May 8. It will be a radical little being, but it will have no mean or dishonorable traits. If trusted, it will not betray your confidence. It has great possibilities.

There is little moderation in your nature. You have a fiery temper, which dies down as quickly as it flames up, but not without leaving ashes of regret. You are always in a hurry, (your accelerator is jammed), and for no tangible reason. Restless, dissatisfied and unhappy because of uncontrolled energies. If you are here you want to be there. If you are doing this, you want to be doing that. The human engine was made for endurance tests and not for speed try-outs. Your mind is always in a state of anxious stress, and it is chronically tired. The remedy? Relax! You are trying to cram too many things into your life—weed out the nonessential.

Your mind is too active, and you superficially learn things very quickly. It does not take you long to catch on to things. You do not retain your knowledge, however, as well as those of the plodding type. You do not have the patience to go into things thoroughly. You admire tidiness in others, but you are naturally disorderly. If a man in an office, your desk is a mess. you are a bright, vivacious conversationalist, and you give an impression of being more learned than you really are. It is your aim to swim in the grand big society pond. Your ambitions are social ones.

Successful people born May 8:

1—William H. Vanderbilt, financier.
2—Louis M. Gottschalk, pianist and composer.
3—Augusta E. Wilson, authoress.
4—Charles F. Naegele, artist.
5—Frank George Carpenter, traveler.
6—Robert Ingersoll Aitken, sculptor.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Jersey retains its place in sports wear—this one is beige with border touches of black and yellow. (Courtesy of Ardanse, Paris).

Paris, May 7

M. PATOU, distinguished couturier, just got his heart broken into little bits on a trip to America, and it's all your fault. He said so sadly that his "long skirt was never intended to be worn by the American working girl, who is ideally fitted for the boyish costume . . . now all smart little working girls are wearing long skirts and so have spoiled their natural charm."

Oh, dear, why did we have to go and break M. Patou's heart like that, just by not using our heads on this question of the length of skirts? The matter has long since been settled in the minds of the Paris couturiers and as if that weren't enough, the women with a brain or two have figured it out logically for themselves. Sports wear and daytime wear, although below knee length, are never, never longer than the middle of the calf and won't be! That goes—for the American business girl.

Afternoon dresses, while they are some longer than sports wear, still fail to swirl about the ankles or even approach them. Uneven hems droop a little and give an effect of length, but even hems rest about thirteen inches from the floor.

Only evening gowns, where elegance is the keynote, are very, very long, and these, of course, are definitely and irretrievably so. We are all agreed on that—M. Patou, the rest of Paris and the American working girl!

I never thought I'd have to bring up this question of length of skirts again, but in this world of things as they are, there comes a time when a good scolding won't hurt us a bit.

For the American business girl, who is a type quite distinctly for and of herself, to affect airs of elegance in her office is ridiculous. It is such things, which justifiably bring down upon us the ridicule and wrath of men. When we really learn the lesson of dressing for our activities, whether our activities be sports activities or business, then only will we be able to look 'em in the eye and tell 'em they can take it or leave it . . . and mean it!

• • • •

When you hear "Ardanse," you rather expect to see something and you always do. So when she said there was a lovely beige jersey street outfit to be sketched, we could hardly wait.

When the beautiful Russian artist came back with the sketch, it was everything that one would have it be, with the black and yellow tiny border just at the hem of the dress and making the turnback collar of the lovely cape.

A piece of string can have a lot more importance than just . . . a piece of string! It can become a hat in less time than it takes to tell it, when it is knitted into a solid material and shaped to suit the wearer's face. Or if you need a dressier type of hat (which you most assuredly will need this summer) you can do wonders with horsehair braid, and a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet making these millinery marvels. And if you aren't terribly ingenious with your needle and some of your stitches show in the back of the hat, what care you . . . flowers and feathers are being worn this season!

By the way, we suppose you're still looking for the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Washington Post each Sunday. Do read it.

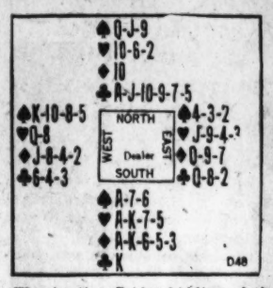
WORK'S BRIDGE

A WELL PLAYED HAND.



The Auction Bridge bidding of the above hand would be: South one No Trump followed by three passes; while a worthless singleton is a No Trump taboo, a singleton King is not listed as worthless.

The Contract bidding would be: South two Diamonds, North three Clubs, South three No Trumps; or if South should venture to bid two No Trumps in spite of his singleton, North would bid three.

When the hand was played, West led the Four of Spades and the Declarer then could see that he was sure to take two Spade tricks (three if East had the King), two Hearts, two Diamonds and two Clubs; he needed one more trick for game and that trick could be obtained by utilizing dummy's Clubs. To do that he must provide for an entry in dummy outside of the Club suit, and that entry could be obtained only in Spades; so he was careful to play South's Ace on the first trick. If dummy's Nine had been permitted to win, West could have killed the entry in dummy by holding his King until South played a low Spade. The number of Declarer's Spade tricks would not be increased by winning trick 1 cheaply, because West must have the King and there was little chance that he could be forced to lead a second Spade.

Having captured the Spade in closed hand, the King of Clubs was led and overtaken by dummy's Ace. Although this play made the adverse Queen a winner, it was necessary in order to insure ttaking three Clubs tricks. If the King of Clubs had been permitted to win, the Spade entry would have to be used to put dummy in to cash the Ace of Clubs; and even that would not produce the needed three Club tricks unless the improbable happened and the adverse Queen fell on the Ace. But by overtaking the leading one or more of dummy's Jack-Ten-Nine (depending upon how soon the adverse Queen came out) the Queen would be forced out while dummy still had a Spade entry. Played in this way the Declarer is sure of two Spades, two Hearts, two Diamonds and at least three Clubs; as was to be expected, the adverse Eight of Clubs fell on one of the Jack-Ten-Nine sequence held by dummy so five Club tricks were taken.

APPLE AND RHUBARB PIE.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Everybody likes apple pie and almost everybody likes rhubarb pie—so why not try both fruits together for a somewhat novel combination? The suggestion is from the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, which has tested the result before recommending it.

1 large apple.
3 cups sliced rhubarb.
2 tablespoons butter.
½ to ¾ cup sugar.
¼ teaspoon salt.
Pastry.

Line a deep pie tin with pastry and bake until lightly browned. Pare and cut the apple into thin slices, cover the crust with the sliced apple and sprinkle with part of the sugar and salt, which have been mixed together. Put the sliced rhubarb over the apple, add the remaining sugar, and dot with the butter. Lay strips of pastry in checkerboard fashion over the fruit and bake in a moderate oven until the fruit is tender.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES

PLEASE tell me the name of the plant of which I am inclosing a leaf. Does it flower and does it require special care? Also suggest a remedy for tiny white insects which have inf ted the plant. Please also tell me how to care for a Boston fern.

C. G. G.

Your plant is a dracaena sanderiana. This is a foliage plant, demanding a warm, moist atmosphere and a great deal of fresh air. Keep plant in a place were it will have four hours' sun a day. Water it four times a week and spray the foliage once in ten days with cold, soapy water. Keep your Boston fern in a light but not sunny location and water it whenever the soil in the pot seems dry. Spray the foliage once a week with cold, soapy water to keep it free from scale or other insects Keep the surface soil in pot quite loose.

My ivy has tiny brown spots on the leaves. As they are removable, I imagine that they are some sort of insects. Please suggest a way to get rid of them MARY L. F.

The brown spots on the leaves of your ivy are scale, brown, hard-shelled insects. These can be removed if you go over each leaf and literally scrub them away. In order to prevent a return of the scale it will be necessary to spray the plant once each week with cold, soapy water.

Please tell me why the plant of which I am inclosing a twig never bloomed The leaves and buds fell off just as they were well formed. Please also tell me the name of the plant. M. R.

Your plant is an azalea. As you do not tell me the care you have given it, I cannot tell you why the buds have failed to develop. After the buds have formed, the plant, until after it has finished blooming, should be kept in a warm, sunny, well-ventilated place and should be watered every day.

First spread a net of sticky jam.

Of moral strength, and do his best
To do just what you think he ought,
That is, to let himself be caught!

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

ALTHOUGH it is probable that few are aware of the fact, the last dying gesture of a form of screen divertissement that is rapidly becoming extinct is to be observed at the Fox Theater this week. I mean the Fox silent newsreel.

Whether you have noticed it or not, all of the newsreels being currently projected upon the screens of the Capital have been sound and talking subjects. This is in line with a tacit agreement among the makers of the interesting releases concerning themselves wholly with world events. Fox has been the last to abandon the silent news and the issue now on the local screen is the last even this company will present. If you are keeping an accurate written record of such things for the enlightment of future generations, you may set it down in the book that the last silent newsreel ever shown in a Washington first-run house was No. 64, Vol. II, of the Fox Pictures Corporation, released as of May 3, 1930.

At that, I doubt if the date will ever be made a legal holiday.

Speaking of newsreels, it may also be worth jotting down that while Mussolini, the Italian Pooh-Bah, has decreed that only such talking pictures as speak Italian may be shown on the screens of his country, no such rigid restriction has been imposed in the case of the newsreels. A news picture may speak whatever language it happens to speak without incurring the displeasure of Il Duce or falling under any of the multitudinous bans he has imposed upon those who seek to edify his countrymen with their magic lantern shows.

And another thing. I have it on excellent authority—as such things go in the motion picture industry—that the Fox organization has in contemplation if not actual preparation, plans for the establishment of a Nation-wide string of newsreel theaters patterned after the experimental Newsreel Theater in New York that is packed from opening to closing every day at a flat rate of 25 cents per admission.

As has been frequently rumored before, Washington is to be included in the circuit, although as yet no definite site has been selected for the new venture.

This fellow Ace Berry, territorial manager for Radio-Keith-Orpheum, with headquarters in this city, is full of ideas and is known throughout the industry as a lad with the courage of his convictions. Just to prove it to Washington, he is going to introduce an innovation in the marketing of celluloids of the better sort this week.

It is Ace's thought—and from all I have heard he is dead right—that in "The Cuckoos," to be presented as next week's major feature at the RKO-Keith Theater, with Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, the comedy hits of "Rio Rita," in the co-stellar roles, he has an attraction of more than ordinary potentialities. So certain is he that he is right, that he is willing to permit the capacity of the Keith Theater to test the merit of his judgment at a unique Friday night premiere showing of the picture.

On Friday night of this week, then, following the conclusion of the regular last presentation of "Ingagi," the sensational African hunt subject that is concluding a fortnight of record-breaking business, "The Cuckoos" will be screened at no additional cost to the audience. What I mean to say is, that all those purchasing tickets for the final Friday night performance will be permitted to remain for a complete premiere screening of the Wheeler-Woolsey vehicle at no extra expense whatsoever.

It is Mr. Berry's belief that "The Cuckoos" is so extraordinary an entertainment that its presentation in this virtually gratuitous manner, even to a capacity house, will be amply justified by the extravagant word of mouth advertising the picture and the theater will receive next day—and for many days to come.

While I have not seen the film, a cursory survey of a complete set of "stills" and a close scrutiny of the cast lead me to believe that it is both hot and handsome and an opus which might well vindicate all of Mr. Berry's optimism.

With June Clyde, Dorothy Lee, Marguerite Padula—"Hallelujah" in "Hit the Deck," if you remember—Mitchell Lewis and Jobyna Howland supporting the two principal clowns, it looks like a "natural."

Next week's whole story, for your information, is as follows: Earle, Alexander Gray and Bernice Claire in "Song of the Flame;" RKO-Keith's, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in "The Cuckoos;" Palace, Ramon Novarro in "In Gay Madrid;" Fox, El Brendel and Sue Carol in "The Golden Calf;" Rialto, Paul Whiteman and his band, John Boles and the Sisters G in "King of Jazz" second week; Columbia, Norma Shearer, supported by Conrad Nagel, Robert Montgomery and Chester Morris, in "The Divorcee," second week; Metropolitan, Winnie Lightner and Joe E. Brown in "Hold Everything;" Little, Corliss Palmer in "Damaged Souls, fourth week. (For women only.)

George Bancroft, Paramount star, is at the Mayflower deep in conferences pertaining to the production of a film of such importance that when it is finished it will be premiered here in December with the entire congressional delegation as well as the President of the United States and other dignitaries in attendance, so it is said. Mr. Bancroft is being piloted about by Representative William Irving Sirovich, of New York, who wrote the play that is going to create all the furore, and already has addressed the House, been photographed with its leaders and today will be the guest of the Vice President.

What say we go swimming instead of ball-gaming this afternoon?

HIGH LIGHTS OF GREAT WORLD WAR

As Related by the Veterans Themselves

The Perfect Orderly

French interpreters were assigned to every company at the front, and our interpreter happened to be a French Catholic priest. We had just settled in new quarters at St. Martin, during the St. Mihiel drive, when a buddy of mine came over to me and said: "There's no beer joint in this town, Johnny, but don't let that worry you; just follow me."

We walked up the road, and when out of sight of others dropped into a shell hole, where Eddie reached into his blouse and pulled out two bottles. He gave me one, and we proceeded to enjoy some excellent wine. When we had finished I said, "Gee, that was swell wine, Eddie."

"It ought to be," he replied. "It was the priest's communion wine—I carried up his bag," he explained.

A Coincidence

Our division—the Fifty-Second—was attached to the Fourth French Army Corps, and before the fighting started at Champagne, July 14, its commander, Gen. Gourad, realizing the seriousness of the situation, appealed to both the French and American troops for their loyalty and courage. His order was composed of a few short sentences, as follows:

"You will be brave. You must stand your ground. Those of you who have been ordered to stay behind to protect our retreat will be in deep dugouts"—and other lines of a similar character which, although they elude my mind, are not forgotten to history.

We did not retreat, incidentally. However, after my return to Washington after the war, my wife and I went to the Vermont Avenue Christian Church, and here, to my amazemen, the pastor repeated this military order as the subject of his sermon.

Recruiting Poster

During the month of June, 1918, while the Second Division was at Belleau Woods, the casualties on both sides were heavy, and I happened to be placed on a detail burying some dead Germans. Also on the detail was a chap by thename of Morgan, who was always doing something out of the ordinary and whom I found in a dugout with a couple of boards and some paint. He told me he was making a sign to put over the graves of eight Germans whom he had just buried in a group and so the next day I made it a point to go back and look at the grave. Over the mound was the sign with these words on it: "Wake Up, Your Country Needs You."

Spurs vs. Hobnails

About 50,000 men were stationed in St. Nazaire after the armistice and the town, though large, provided nothing in the way amusements—there were no shows of any kind, no place to go, nothing to see but the ocean, nothing to do but hold one's nose. To remedy the deficiency there were several dances every night at the various "Y" huts and as there were not more than 40 or so Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. girls in the town they were in much demand as partners.

There was never any question concerning what the girls were to do on any night—they were to dance—but the subject of debates was should it be "spurs" (the officers) or "hobnails" (the men)?

A poetical invitation from the enlisted men at Camp Hospital No. 11, addressed to "Miss American Maid," won the decision for the "hobnails" on one occasion. To quote a few lines:

"Though we're here in France, the desire to dance
Is keen to Americans all.
And not being exempt, we intend to attempt

Another explanatory verse went:

"A madamoiselle, is all very well
To chat with in our spare time:
But when dancing awhirl, the American girl
Is quite in a class sublime."

Perhaps needless to say, the invitation was accepted and the "girls" did their best to uphold their terpsichorean reputation.

A First Crossing

I was on one of the first sixteen U. S. Army transports to be conveyed to France, which convoy carried over the First Division and one brigade of the Second Division, with hospital, ordance and quartermaster units. I was on the little transport Lenape, a former Clyde Line coastwise steamer. Three incidents in the twelve or thirteen days we were on the water were outstanding. The first day out the transports took turns at target practice at a target towed by the cruiser Birmingham. One, if not all, the guns were kept loaded for any emergency and the muzzle covers were placed over the ends of the guns. One of the sailors in some way just about sundown one evening set one of the guns off accidentally and all the men on deck were spattered with fragments from the muzzle cover. No other damage was done as, fortunately, the gun was not pointed at any of the other ships.

Another evening about sundown one of the guns of a transport opened fire at a supposed submarine, but after the shot was fired it was seen to be a whale imitating a "sub" and if the whale was not hit the shell gave him the scare of his life from the way he splashed the water.

After getting into the so-called war zone all transports put on full speed and one afternoon the Lenape struck some submerged object and the men on the lookout claimed that the coning tower of a submarine came up out of the water momentarily. I was at the time writing a letter on my bunk, but on feeling the impact I rushed out on deck. The bells for the lifeboat drill rung and the whistle blew. The major in command appeared to be the worst scared man on board. We had nine vessels convoying us, the Birmingham, gunboat Corsair, another gunboat whose name I have forgotten, four American destroyers and two French destroyers. Two American destroyers dashed through the spot where the coning tower came up and after they passed a fountain of water shot up and it was debated by the men as to what it might be, as we at that time had never heard of a depth charge. The cruiser Birmingham and one of the French destroyers circled around and started a course off at a right angle to the transports and followed this almost out of sight. Suddenly they turned and rejoined the convoy. After landing in France we were told that the "sub" was sunk.

A "Close" Friend

A group of soldiers were resting in the shade of a big chateau near the front and pleasantly chatting, when a cootie interrupted the first sergeant by nibbling at the calf of his leg. As he leaned over to loosen his puttee, a German sniper's bullet hit the building just at the spot where he had been previously resting his head.

Every one then ducked for safer cover where the sergeant resumed his search for the cootie. Finally retrieving it he held it gently between his fingers, opened the front of his shirt and deposited it upon his breast with the words, "Have a better home, Mr. Cootie, and you can stay there until we get back to the U. S. A."

Got Acquainted

I remember a recruit with Headquarters Company of First Division, A. E. F. He had learned to distinguish officers by the gold and black cords on their hats (the American officers did not wear Sam Browne belts at that time). He did not know that major generals wore gold cords on their hats instead of the gold and black. Maj. Gen. Sibert, commanding general of First Division, came along one day and the recruit did not salute the general. Being called down, and gazing at the gold hat cord, the soldier explained that he thought the general was a soldier in the Quartermaster Corps on account of his "yellow" hatband. There was evidently something about the soldier that the general liked, as the next time I saw him he was driving the general in a motorcycle sidecar.

Tommy Lowe, of Washington, and Kid Stein, of Baltimore, fought ten fast and bloody rounds to a draw before the Eutaw Club in Baltimore last night.

Washington is now leading the American League. They are the talk of the country, having won seven of their last nine games. Plans are being made for a big celebration when they return home from Philadelphia. Subscriptions are being taken to buy red fire to illuminate the Avenue when the ball players ride down the Avenue. The town has gone baseball mad. This is the first time a team from Washington has been in first place since 1880, when Washington won the Eastern League pennant.

Three masked men forced Mrs. Charles Berkshire to give the signal which killed her husband, a wealthy farmer of Brookville, W. Va. They tried to force her to reveal where her husband, who is reported to be wealthy, hid his money in their home. She was beaten and left bound and gagged beside the corpse of her husband.

Representative Frank B. Brandegee, of New London, Conn., was nominated candidate to succeed the late Orville H. Platt, former senator from Connecticut.

Nan Patterson is expected to go free today.

Wives of Tomorrow

"Women—and Chains."

SEVERAL wives have written in this morning's mail condemning in no uncertain terms the fact that the writer of this column advised a certain able-bodied young woman to leave an abusive husband. These women maintain that no wife should ever leave her husband or ever be advised to leave him. Upon reading such letters one can not help wondering just how far we women have advanced the past few thousand annums! The young wife whose predicament started all the trouble wrote that her lord and master acted like a fiend in human form, refused to allow her to go outside the house, accused her of all sorts of imaginary wrongs, failed to give her money lest she spend it on friends or clothes, and was slowly breaking down her health. Experience indicated that the man was unfit for marriage, and separation was advised. The vitriolic outbursts that have arrived since would seem to indicate that progress along lines of feminine psychology must be tempered to the limitations of feminine mentality—for woman hugs her chains. The chariot wheel is dear to her heart, if she but knows the driver is her own particular lord.

Well, for the ladies who like to be chained, and love to be dragged behind a chariot wheel, we make no suggestions, for we know of nothing that can help them. But for the intelligent young woman who finds herself the victim of a hopeless marriage, subject to abuse and with the courage to break her bonds, we shall continue to suggest that she break them.

The days of slavery for women ended sometime back. The man who abuses a woman today is not a rational being. He is not fit for marriage and no woman should continue to live in the marriage state with any man who is unfit for the state—though hundreds and thousands are so living.

"Men are no better and no worse than their wives make them," says one woman. Maybe so, maybe so. If so all the more reason they should not be permitted to be abusive.

One woman declars: "you tell a woman to leave a faithful husband who is a little rough, and then you tell another woman to forgive infidelity and stay with the man who was unfaithful."

Absolutely. And we further wish to go on record as considering that an abusive husband no matter how monogamous is unfit for fatherhood, while a man might be a wonderful father and still be by instinct quite polygamous. We would advise a wife to leave the former and accept the repentance of the latter.

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help those who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

WHITEHILL HURLS TIGERS TO 3-1 WIN OVER NATS

Field Shrinks To Ten for Preakness

9 Sure to Start With Gallant Fox Rated Heavy Favorite.

Desert Light Is Out; Sande Will Ride Classic Choice.

BALTIMORE, May 7 (A.P.).—Awaiting the official list of starters, expected tomorrow, racing observers here today believed ten or fewer of the country's leading 3-year-olds would face the barrier in the fortieth renewal of $50,000 added Preakness at Pimlico on Friday.

In 1928, eighteen started, the largest number to go to the post in the classic. Last year eleven started.

Aside from the Belair Stud's Gallant Fox, overwhelming favorite because of his great record and his victory at Jamaica in the Wood Memorial last month over Crack Brigade and Desert Light, 9 of the 78 nominates are believed sure to start. They are:

Audley Farm's Woodcraft, T. M. Cassidy's Crack Brigade, Glen Riddle Farm's Full Dress, Walter M. Jeffords' Armageddon, John L. Pontius' Michigan Boy. Walter J. Salmon's Swinfield and Snowflake, and Seagram Stable's Sweet Sentiment and Sun Craig.

Desert Light Out Of Classic.

Pirates, Outhit, Beat Giants Easily, 16 to 8

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 7 (A.P.).—The Pirates won their first game of the series from the New York Giants today by hitting four pitchers for fifteen hits and a 16-to-8 victory. The Giants did more hitting in the contest, getting sixteen, but Pittsburgh made the blows count.

Roy Parmelee started for the Giants and was the victim of a six-run rally in the first inning that played the major part in the Pittsburgh triumph. The Pirates scored in six of their eight innings.

Peacock Wins Woodmont Medal

Junior Champion's 73 Withstands Assault in Qualifying.

3 Tie for Second With 76; Stevinson Out of Tournament.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

MORE than a hundred golfers golfers struggled around the course of the Woodmont Club yesterday, playing on the second day of the qualifying round in the club's spring tournament, in a vain effort to dislodge Roger Peacock, District junior champion, from the position of medalist. Last Tuesday, the first day of the qualification, Peacock, who is a member of the Indian Spring Club, had a fine score of 73, four strokes over par.

Only three contestants yesterday—Harry G. Pitt, Manor; A. S. W. Fraley, Chevy Chase, and John C. Shorey, Bannockburn—came near to tieing Peacock's score and they were three strokes in the reach, each with 76.

Although Miller B. Stevinson, District amateur champion, started yesterday afternoon, he did not finish his round. He was out in 44, averaging a stroke over par on every hole, and then added a disastrous six to his card for the twelfth hole, finally meeting his waterloo when he encountered the ditch on the fifteenth. "There was nothing in particular and everything in general," he laughingly remarked when asked about his high score. "I simply took too many strokes."

Hufty Starts With Birdie Three.

Page Hufty, who squeezed into the first sixteen by the margin of one stroke, started with a birdie 3, driving the first green, 293 yards, but failed to keep the pace. Shorey had 5s on the first three holes and ended with a 6 after playing into the trap which guards the home green and his lost strokes were not offset by sufficient birdies. Pitt, who was the medalist at the Washington Club last week, was out in 41 and lathough he made the homeward journey in 35, one stroke over par, his brilliant recovery came too late.

When all the scores had been turned in, and this result was not reached until the sun had set at the close of an ideal deay, six players with cards of 81 were in a tie for three places in the first sixteen. Forrest Thompson, Beaver Dam; J. Monroe Hunter, jr., Indian Spring, and Charles R. Morrow, Indian Spring, went into the championship flight, but M. E. Oliveri, Argyle; Frank G. Butler, Argyle, and C. A. Yaeger, Middletown, N. Y., were forced to be contented with assignments in the second sixteen.

Cards of 91 Lose Out In the Draw.

Three players with cards of 91 were drawn into the fourth sixteen, but Harlan Wills, unattached; I. J. Henderson, Indian Spring; William E. Richardson, Manor; Dr. Joseph Friedman, Beaver Dam, and N. H. Laden, Beaver Dam, lost out in the drawn.

Match play rounds will begin this morning, with the contestants starting at intervals of four minutes. The pairings and the times of play this morning follow:

Women golfers who propose to enter the Star Cup tournament next Monday and Tuesday have been granted the privilege of playing practice rounds on the Indian Spring

YANKS DOWN CLEVELAND, 8 TO 7

Ruth's 4th Home Run Aids; Victory Credited to Zachary.

NEW YORK, May 7 (A.P.).—The Yankees reversed the decision against the Cleveland Indians today, pounding four opposing pitchers for twelve hits and an 8-to-7 victory to even the series.

A five-run rally in the fourth inning, in which Ruth's fourth home run of the year played the big part, brought the Yankees the victory. The homer was made off Miller when two men were on bases. Ben Chapman also hit a homer for New York.

Tom Zachary celebrated his thirty-second birthday by getting credit for his first victory of the year, although Roy Sherid had to finish the game for him.

Oliver Hero as Boston Defeats White Sox. 6-4

Boston, May 7 (A.P.).—Tom Oliver, Red Sox rookie, led the Hub Hose to a victory over the Chicago White Sox here today. By bunching their hits and taking advantage of White Sox errors, the Bostonians won the second game of the series, 6 to 4. Boston got an early lead off McKain and held it. The visitors hit Lisenbee twelve times, but could not get in a big inning.

Oliver gathered in four hits, including a double, and made it sixteen consecutive games in which he has hit. His fielding also was brilliant.

HALE BEATS A'S, HITTING HOMER

Former Mate's Clout Spoils 3 Hit Game for Earnshaw.

PHILADELPHIA, May 7 (A.P.).—Sammy Hale's home run with Blue on base in the third inning gave Walter Stewart the better of a hurling duel with George Earnshaw today, the St. Louis Browns defeating the Philadelphia Athletics, 2 to 1. The defeat stopped the champions' winning streak of six straight.

Earnshaw permitted only three hits, against six that Stewart allowed the Mackmen. The Athletics scored their lone tally in the seventh on Schang's double to center, Blue's muff of Simmons' pop fly, followed by Foxx's sacrifice fly to deep center and Miller's grounder to short.

Frey, Reds' Recruit, Blanks Braves, 1 to 0

Cincinnati, May 7.—Benny Frey, rookie pitcher, today held Boston to three singles and blanked the Braves, 1 to 0. Doubles by Meusel and Kelly accounted for the only run in the final inning. The victory was the third straight for Frey. He has not been defeated and recently pitched a 1-to-0 game against the champion Cubs. Ben Cantwell hurled a strong game for the visitors, but weakened in the last inning.

G. U. Defeats Princeton Nine, 5-2

White Outlasts Three Tiger Hurlers, Allowing But 5 Hits.

Error, Passed Ball, Wild Pitch in Sixth Figure in Victory.

Special to The Washington Post.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 7.—Georgetown added Princeton to its list of victims when the Hilltoppers defeated the Tigers 5-2 here today.

Lefty White bested three Princeton pitchers when he limited the Nassau nine to five hits, only two of which came in a single inning. The visitors were able to collect only seven safeties off the slants of Bowman, Ray and Aicher, but the wildness of the former cost him the game after he had pitched five innings of good ball.

Princeton scored first when Vogt hit to open the second and tallied later on O'Toole's poke to center. This combination also accounted for the other Princeton run in the fourth. Vogt got a walk, went to third on Sendey's double and counted on O'Toole's sacrifice.

Georgetown Rallies In Sixth.

McCarty's second hit of the day scored Donovan in the Georgetown third, but Bowman then tightened up until in the sixth. In this frame Mooney singled and Wholey got a life on O'Toole's miscue. The former scored on a passed ball and Morris walked and then stole second. Bowman then cut loose with a wild pitch, Wholey scoring easily and Morris also crossed the plate safely when Bowman dropped Eno's return throw.

St. Louis, Mo., May 7 (A.P.).—The Cardinals and the Phillies were in a hitting mood today, collecting between them 35 hits, including 5 home runs, 11 doubles and 3 triples. A nine-run attack in the fifth inning gave the Cardinals enough advantage to win by the score of 16 to 11.

In the fifth the Cardinals got six hits, among them a home run and a triple by Chick Hafey.

BATTLESHIP GRAY GALLOPS IN GRADED HANDICAP

2 Man o' War Colts Win at Pimlico

Allez Vite Scores in Opener, Outgaming Imaginary.

Gay Past Beats Black Diamond in Graded B Handicap.

By J. B. SNODGRASS
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, May 7.—A double victory for the Glenn Riddle Stable, a double for Man o' War offspring and a double for Jockey McCoy, took place when the 4-year-old Battleship Gray led all the way to win the Pimlico Graded Handicap, class A, which featured the card here today. The Sagamore Stable's Coin Collector was second, beaten a length and a half, and J. R. Thompson's Minotaur third. The time was 1:12 3-5 for the 6 furlongs. Five horses started, Battleship Gray toting top weight.

There was little delay at the starting gate. Battleship Gray began to cause trouble, in keeping with the Man o' War breed. He was away in front and Coin Collector was next in order and ran gamely, but could gain no ground on the Gray horse. All McCoy had to do was to sit still and his mount kept an even stride, made the turn in to the home stretch without losing an inch and came on to the wire with plenty to spare.

The price was the shortest of the day, a shade less than 1 to 2. Grey Coat, a horse that made history when he beat Blue Larkspur last year at Belmont Park was fourth. His last good race has never been duplicated by the son of Gnome.

There was a large crowd out again. Many out-of-town people, the advance guard of the Preakness crowd, are here waiting for the Friday classic, and attend the track daily.

Allez Vite Outruns Imaginary Easily.

The Glen Riddle Farm's Allez Vite, by Man o' War—May Alley, won the first race, beating the favorite, Imaginary, by an open length. Sue S. was third.

Grace E. delayed the start at the gate, but after the field of maiden 2-year-old fillies was away to a good start, Sue S., J. P. McGovern's entry, took the lead and drew away, but once in the home stretch Allez Vite and Imaginary, which had begun closing in, snatched the lead from her and in the run down the home lane, the Man o' War filly easily distanced all rivals. She paid $6.10 and an 4½ furlongs in 0:55 2-5.

Over Shady Triumphs Easily in Second.

The second race, like the first, formed for 2-year-old fillies, brought to the gate a flashy band in which the throngs weltering in the heat here disagreed, dividing their allegiance among three or four of the contending juveniles, resulted in a well-backed winner, when the Nevada Stock Farm's Overshady won easily after leading all the way. J. E. Davis' Redoubtable was second, and W. J. Salmon's Light Step third. Faylin was fourth. The winner paid $6.90. Score one for the new stallions. Overshady was sired by Bubbling Over, Light Step by Ladkin, and Faylin, fourth at the finish, by Dunlin. Faylin carried the colors of Howard Bruce. Morrison put up a hustling ride on the winner. The time was 0:55 4-5 for 4½ furlongs.

Blue Darter Hangs On To Take Fourth.

J. P. Kelly's Blue Darter won the fourth race at a mile and a furlong in a head finish from Rejuvenation, the favorite. Jack Hawksley was third. Cogwheel led the others home.

Eight platers accepted the issue in this race. Harvard was first out of the gate. Before the field had reached the stewards' stand Blue Darter and Cog Wheel had taken the lead in the order named, with Rejuvenation third. When the horses had reached the back stretch Quillen had to fight every inch of ground to keep Blue Darter in front, but managed to hold it against the determined challenge of Rejuvenation. The price richly rewarded those who backed the Kelly horse, which paid $27.70. Time, 1:55 3-5.

Gay Past Wins Fifth; Sande Cut Off.

Graded handicap, class B, was run as the fifth race. The object of a graded handicap is to assort the horses and get them in their own class, and this race was a step below the grade A in class. P. S. P. Randolph's Gay Past finished in front, followed by Walter J. Salmon's Black Diamond, with Judge Bartlett third and G. D. Widener's Shady Lady fourth.

Earl Sande had the mount on Mrs. Milton C. Holden's Luckite, and when making his run in the stretch was bumped by two of the leaders and effectually cut off. Seven started, and Shady Lady and Poinciana led away from the gate head and head, with Luckite third. Gay Past worked his way up and took the lead in the stretch. F. Stevens rode the winner. The time was 1:13 2-5. The winner was the favorite, paying $5.50.

The Sagamore Stable's Montferrat won the sixth race, with V. Glorioso in the saddle. Searington was second and Naylor third. They ran a mile and 70 yards in 1:46 2-5. Montferrat had much in reserve at the end.

Gerard was in front at the clubhouse turn, but lost ground making the bend and slowed down on the back stretch. He indicated he does not like a route. The winner paid $7.

ALLEZ VITE SCORES NO IMAGINARY VICTORY IN FIRST.

ALLEZ VITE, outpaced for the first three furlongs, swung to the outside entering the home stretch, closed full of run and, catching the faltering leaders, drew into an easy lead. IMAGINARY, hard hustled, was inclined to bear in at the final furlong pole, was taken up to come to the outside, but could not threaten the winner. SUE S., keen for half a mile, tired. MISS MADELYN tired gradually. EXPLORE had no mishaps. The others were held safe.

OVERSHADY SHADES FIELD IN THE SECOND NUMBER.

OVERSHADY, going improved, went into a short lead early, saved ground when approaching the home stretch, resisted keen efforts from REDOUBTABLE and began drawing clear while under urging nearing the finish. REDOUBTABLE, a hard factor all the way, made repeated efforts but weakened the last sixteenth. LIGHT STEP broke fast, but dropped back immediately, gained her best stride and closed with good energy. FAYLIN was unable to keep up. SAND PLAY could not get to the leaders and she was eased up all through the last furlong. BALDACHINO broke slow.

BATTLESHIP GRAY DOES EXPECTED IN THE THIRD EVENT.

BATTLESHIP GRAY began quickly, sprinted away into an easy lead, raced under restraint after reaching the far turn, and finished with much in reserve. COIN COLLECTOR made a determined bid when approaching the home stretch and finished courageously, but was not good enough. MINOTAUR was hard urged throughout. He began weakening at end and barely lasted to stall off GREY COAT, latter lacked early speed, closed gamely and was worked out a mile. BEAU OF THE WEST showed no speed.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 5:09. Off at 5:10½. Winner, J. P. Kelly's ch. g. BLUE DARTER'S BACKERS ANYTHING BUT BLUE IN FOURTH.

BLUE DARTER, in reserve for the first five furlongs, went into the lead without effort, was kept under urging and, withstanding a drive gamely in the final issue, resisted JUVENATION until nearly even with to the winner without much trouble, but Quackenbush rode in listless fashion through the final stages and appeared very overconfident. JACK HAWKSLEY, kept in early contention, closed with good energy. COGWHEEL could not get to the leaders. REALTOR went reverse with HARVARD quit after six furlongs. FIRE OPAL was outrun.

GAY PAST SHOWS PLENTY OF PEP IN FIFTH ON CARD.

GAY PAST, gaining a prominent position after the first furlong, circled around his field with splendid speed when approaching the home stretch, assumed command at the final furlong pole and came away to win well in hand. BLACK DIAMOND, going along in a forward position, closed with good courage. JUDGE BARTLETT, outpaced for five furlongs, came stoutly in the final drive. SHADY LADY was used up racing with POINCIANA and quit. POINCIANA had early speed, but is a nonstayer. LUCKITE was outrun.

MONTFERRAT EASY WINNER IN SIXTH ON PROGRAM.

MONTFERRAT, hurried to the front, was rated along early while stalling off GERARD, drew away from the latter when reaching the far turn and was never menaced thereafter. SEARINGTON, slow to get into his stride, worked his way up on the outside and closed gamely. NAYLOR began slowly, settled in his stride and made up ground steadily. SYRIAC went well throughout. GERARD, stoutly urged from the start, weakened fast in the final drive. KING KELLY showed a very dull effort and is more capable.

SEVENTH RACE—Six furlongs (Class C). Purse, $1,500. The Pimlico Graded Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 6:48. Off at 6:49. Winner, M. W. Henry's b. c. (4), by Ultimatum—Plaid Kilts. Trained by J. E. Faulstich. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:14 3-5.

NAE BREEKS REPEATS BY VICTORY IN DAY'S FINAL.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NAE BREEKS, $12.70, $5.70, $3.60; JUSTA PAL, $10.90, $6.20; RED BRIAR, $4.50.

NAE BREEKS, following the pacemakers closely, responded to pressure, came steadily to wear down the leaders and, holding on grimly, just lasted to stall off JUSTA PAL. Latter, slow to get going, came to the outside the last half mile and was wearing the winner down fast. RED BRIAR finished with good courage in the final drive. STUPENDOUS hung badly after a bold effort. KENZIE tired after moving into a brief lead. ROCKAPHINE and SANTROCK were used up setting the early pace. JEWEL KIT just galloped behind the field.

finished twenty lengths behind Woodcraft, is out of this list.

Earl Sande, best known of American riders, now back in the saddle after a try at running his own stable, is to ride Gallant Fox in both the Preakness, May 9, and the Kentucky Derby on May 17.

Gallant Fox worked a mile in 1:47 today and Swinfield stepped a mile and an eighth in 1:56 2-5, thus comparing with the fastest time ever made over the Preakness route of a mile and three-sixteenths, 1:59 4-5, made by Display in 1926. Sweet Sentiment made the mile and an eighth in 1:59 2-5.

WESTERN NINE LOSES THREE REGULARS FOR SERIES

Title Chances Of Team Are Dimmed

Payne, Tabler, Owens Fail to Pass in School Work.

Pitcher, 1st Baseman and Outfielder Must Be Replaced.

AFTER several days of rumor, hearsay, and doubt, the receipt of official report cards at Western High School yesterday definitely established the ineligibility of Bill Payne, star pitcher, whose "flunking" had been announced and then denied. Payne's report showed a deficiency in one subject and he will be lost to the team for the balance of the year.

However, that is not the only bad news that cropped up regarding the Western Team, inasmuch as the announcement of the grades also revealed the fact that Quincy Owens and Ed Tabler, regular first baseman and left fielder, had both been lost to the team through the same means.

The loss of these three men practically wrecks the Western team, the trio having formed the nucleus around which Coach Clifton Moore had been building his players for a bid for the interhigh championship.

Payne Earned Rating Of Star.

Payne had been considered one of the two outstanding pitchers in the series, Lanahan, of Eastern, being the only one comparable with him, and it had been expected that Western would wage its fight with Eastern solely on Payne's ability.

Owens, at first, in his first game, had given evidence of developing into one of the best first basemen among the schools, the lad being an all-around performer. He will be replaced by Clarence Fox, a substitute who was shunted from the line-up by his weak hitting. It is expected that Jimmy Thompson, a hard-hitter, will take the place of Tabler in left, the former having become eligible for the third advisory.

Gonzaga Nine 11-8 Victor Over Business

The third victory in as many days was annexed by Gonzaga Hill School Baseball Team yesterday on the Monument Lot, when it outslugged the Business High Nine to win, 11 to 8, in a free-for-all scoring bee. Gonzaga took a 5-run lead in the very first inning, but after the second inning was blanked until the seventh, with Silverman in the box for Business.

Although beaten, the hitting of the Business players was not stopped, seven of them banging out twelve hits for a total of eighteen bases. Duryee and Singman contributed home runs, while Spencer Chase smashed a triple.

In the last two frames, the first Nat up saw base-life, but nothing more. Loepp led off in round eight with a single, but was doubled-up at first when Gehringer went all the way to the right-field foul line to rob Rice of what appeared to be a sure single. Myer, the only Nat to get more than one safety, made his second starting the ninth, but he remained on first while Johnson took flies off the bats of Cronin and Judge and then was forced at second, to end the game, on Bluege's roller to McManus.

EASTERN 7-6 WINNER ON HONORS

Rally Erases Lead of Woodward Prep in Thriller.

A STARTLING upset was almost recorded at the Eastern High School Stadium yesterday, when a hitherto unimpressive prep school nine came within one inning of defeating Eastern's championship-bound baseball team, before bowing, 7-6.

For eight innings, Woodward Prep, of the Y. M. C. A., held a lead over the highly touted Lincoln Parkers, but in the eighth frame, the Light Blue and White batters opened a sudden attack to score four runs and emerge victorious.

Two runs behind, Panetta deadlocked the game for Eastern when he hit a home run with a man on base and a moment later the next batter, Calevas, assured victory when he smacked the first ball pitched over the right field fence for another homer.

Temple Evens Series; Defeats Marines, 3 to 1

Quantico, Va., May 7.—Temple University evened the series with the All-Marine Baseball Team when they took today's game by a score of 3 to 1. Williams, for the Templelites, and Almand, for the Sea Soldiers, pitched excellent ball, each twirler pitching eight scoreless innings. The University Team scored all its runs in the first inning when, after Leaness had fanned Rambone walked. Wershing doubled and Young tripled, scoring both runners and came home when Godfrey drove deep to left field for a sacrifice.

The Marines were blanked by Williams until after two were retired in the ninth, then Gorman, Gatewood and Ware singled in succession to bring in their lone tally. J. Young and Wershing for the visitors and Lock and Ware for the Marines played a nice fielding game.

MARYLAND U. BEATEN OUT IN NINTH

Virginia Cadets Come From Behind to Score, 10 to 9.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEINGTON, Va., May 7.—After holding a 7-to-3 lead up to the eighth inning and seeing that wiped out by a six-run splurge, the Cadets came back strong to take the game, 10 to 9, in the ninth from the University of Maryland. This was the fifth win for the Keydets in their six starts in the Tristate League.

Maryland scored one run in the second and third innings on two walks, two hits and an error. V. M. I. scored four runs in the third on doubles by Langhorn and Grow and singles by Gillespie and Blocker. Batson was hit hard again in the fourth, when the Keydets scored three more runs. Laughorn got another double in this inning.

Keydets Rally to Take Game in Final.

Hauver took the mound at the beginning of the fifth and held the Cadets scoreless for four innings. The Old Liners scored one run in the seventh and then chased Noble and Williams from the mound on three doubles and three singles, taking the lead at 9 to 7. V. M. I. was retired in order in the eighth, but, with a never-say-die fight, came back in the ninth to take the game.

Gillie Laughorn started things off with his third double of the game and Waite was hit by the pitcher. William beat out a bunt and Grow scored Laughorn and Waite on a single. Gillespie laid down a pretty bunt to bring Williams in with the winning run.

Navy Tennis Team Defeat Cavaliers, 6-3

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 7.—Tennis players of the University of Virginia bowed to the Annapolis midshipmen here today by a score of 6 to 3, the Tars taking four of the six strings of singles, and two of the three doubles matches. Harvard is the only other team that has beaten the Cavaliers so far this season. And this was their seventh match.

Today's contest attracted more than the average local interest by reason of the presence in the Virginia line-up of C. Alphonso Smith, formerly of Annapolis and national junior champion a few years back. Smith won his match handily from Johnson, the Navy star, and teamed with Johns. He bore the brunt of play to defeat Johnson and Lucas in two straight sets. Robertson and Chew, of Navy, were extended to the utmost to win their doubles from Martin and Newell and thereby prevent a deadlock. The match went into three sets.

SINGLES—Smith (Virginia) defeated Johnson, 6—2, 6—3; Halstead (Navy) defeated Johns, 6—2, 5—3; Salisbury (Navy) defeated Martin, 6—3, 6—4; Robertson (Navy) defeated Noell, 6—1, 6—3; Whitehead (Virginia) defeated Lucas, 6—2, 6—2, 7—5; Holtzworth (Navy) defeated Newell, 6—4, 6—3.

DOUBLES—Smith and Johns (Virginia) defeated Johnson and Lucas, 6—3, 6—2; Halstead and Salisbury (Navy) defeated Whitehead and Noell, 7—3, 6—0; Robertson and Chew (Navy) defeated Martin and Newell, 6—2, 6—3, 6—5.

RICHMOND U. NINE BEATS NAVY, 13-6

McCormick Slams 3 Homers to Aid in Upset Victory.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 7,—Led by Ed McCormick, who swatted out three consecutive home runs, a hard-hitting, snappy fielding University of Richmond Nine bested Navy today, 13 to 6.

While the Southerners played peppy all the way, Navy, on the other hand, booted the ball at critical moments, which generosity widened the visitors' margin. Both sides hit the pellet hard, but Richmond's blows were timely and it seemed that every time Navy became dangerous, McCormick would insert a circuit clout.

Winston Brown, on the hill for the invaders, was stingy in the pinches, and the eleven hits made off him were pretty well scattered. He outpitched three Navy twirlers, all of whom were found for a number of hits that helped in the run getting.

Staunton nWins, 9 to 3, From Fishburne Nine

Special to The Washington Post.

Waynesboro, Va., May 7.—Staunton Military Academy outhit Fishburne Military School here today to win a 9-to-3 victory. For the victors, Griffith gathered a double and two singles in four times at bat, while Hafer smacked out a home run and a triple. The pitching of Schoeller was the best the locals have encountered at home this season, although Houff did register a four-base knock for Fishburne in the third inning.

Alexandria High Nine Beats Western, 5-3

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., May 7.—Bunching three hits and two walks in the first inning, Alexandria High School's Baseball Team took a lead over the Western High Nine of Washington, which was never overcome, and defeated the Capital City nine, 5 to 3, here today.

All of the visitors' runs were due to the hitting of Capt. Bob Freeman, slugging shortstop. Freeman tripled in the first with two on base, momentarily giving his team the lead, and knocked a home-run in the ninth for the last run of the game. The fielding of Hal Stump, Alexandria third baseman, was the feature of the game, the lad handling eight difficult chances without an error.

GEORGETOWN PLAYS WAKE FOREST

G. W.-Va. Netmen in Only Other College Event Today.

GEORGETOWN'S nine is looking for one of its hardest battles of the season this afternoon when it opposes the Wake Forest (N. C.) College Team at Washington Barracks, starting at 2:30 o'clock. The game has been moved up one hour in order to allow the spectators to attend the Georgetown "G" banquet at the Mayflower Hotel, which opens at 6:30 o'clock.

The Hilltoppers' high regard for Wake Forest is based on the fact that Lanning, leading Deacon hurler, will toe the rubber against them. This pitcher, a left-hander, faced them in their earlier game, which Georgetown won. Although the Hilltoppers emerged victorious by an 8-0 score, Lanning, strange to say, gave them plenty of trouble. He gave way to a pinch-hitter after the sixth inning, having yielded only five hits and fanned five. The Georgetown players declare Lanning to be the best pitcher they have encountered this year.

Lomax to Pitch for Georgetown.

Hoping to meet the Deacons on even terms as far as the pitching is concerned, Coach Red Smith left Bill Lomax home yesterday to rest for this game, while the rest of the squad journeyed to Princeton, N. J., to play the Tigers. Lomax pitched against the North Carolinians in the previous clash, limiting them to four hits.

In the only other local varsity contest today, the George Washington Tennis Team will engage the University of Virginia netmen on the courts of Columbia Country Club, commencing at 2:30 o'clock. Not much is known of the strength of the Cavaliers, but, nevertheless, the Colonials anticipate a strenuous afternoon.

Oak Hill High Beats V. P. I. Cubs on Track

Special to The Washington Post.

Blacksburg, Va., May 7.—A sturdy band of runners, wearing the Crimson of Oak Hill High School, came out of West Virginia today to score a 62½ to 59½ triumph over V. P. I. Freshmen Track Team in Miles Stadium. With a trio of stars in Sawyers, Terry and Burgess, the West Virginians took seven first places and came from behind in the final minutes to nip the freshmen in the javelin and half mile.

Terry, Oak Hill sophomore, won the low hurdles, high jump and javelin and took third place in the discus for high point honors. His teammate, Sawyers, was next with wins in the century dash and broad jump and second in the pole vault for a 13-point total. Grinus led the freshmen with 10 points, and Moore showed the way on the track with fine performance in the quarter-mile and the mile relay, which V. P. I. won, in 3 minutes 39 seconds.

IRREGULAR COURSE HITS STOCK SALES

Long List of Shares Drops From 1 to 33 Points in Professional Day.

FUNDS PROVE PLENTIFUL

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—Sharply irregular price movements characterized the trading in stocks today. There were several cycles of rallies and declines, but at the close the list was generally lower as the result of profit taking on yesterday's advance and short selling on two or three developments in and out of the market. A long list of leading shares finished 1 to 8 points net lower.

Perhaps the feature of the day was the general ease in credit accommodations. Money was plentiful and a renewal rate of 3 per cent was posted on the stock exchange for the first time since March 21. Funds were available outside as low as 2 per cent, but the official figure held. Rates on bankers bills were reduced an eighth of 1 per cent and prime name commercial paper underwent a downward revision of one-fuorth per cent. Time money also eased.

Operations in stocks remained largely in the hands of the professionals. Organized efforts to push the list higher were reasonably successful in the early dealings, but traders promptly accepted profits at the higher levels. Considerable pressure was exerted against U. S. Steel on publication of the Iron Age Review's weekly summary, which called attention to additional readjustments in prices, to the cautious nature of buying and to the further production curtailment. Ingot output for the week averaged 77 per cent, against 78 last week.

Steel's Action Unsettles List.

The action of steel, coupled with wide breaks in two specialty stocks, unsettled the list despite further attempts at rallies under the leadership of the amusement group, and it soon appeared that the easiest course was downward.

Manhattan Electrical Supply, whose recent market course is under more investigation by the securities bureau of the State attorney general's office, flopped 35 points, to 18, closing at 19⅜. A statement by the president of the company said its financial condition was "excellent" and referred to a "malicious attempt" to drive the price down. The second stock to suffer severe liquidation was Celotex, which tumbled nearly 24 points on the filing of receivership proceedings. Eight points of the loss were recovered when Celotex's president announced that the concern was solvent and that the court action was unjustified.

These broad declines revived the bears, who started an aggressive selling movement in the final half hour. U. S. Steel, which had sold as high as 173⅜, dipped to 168⅛, recovering only a fraction, for a net loss of 4⅝. Standard stocks like American Telephone, Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, General Electric, Public Service of New Jersey, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Union Pacific and Atchison fell 1 to 3, while American Tobacco B, a feature yesterday, lost 8 points and the A shares 7.

J. I. Case Loses 15 Points.

Johns-Manville, Radio, Coca Cola, Auburn Auto and Vanadium were heavy. J. I. Case reacted 15 points and Mack Truck touched a new low.

Weakness of foreign exchanges was accompanied by authoritative reports of buying on this market for foreign accounts. Large purchases were said to have been made for London customers alarmed by conditions in India, while considerable inquiry for stocks was also said to be coming from Paris. Sterling cables, touching a new low for the year at $4.85 27-32, approached the gold import point.

Commodity prices softened. May wheat dropped 2 cents. Corn was slightly lower, while cotton steadied somewhat after an early reaction. Sugar was easy.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, May 7 (A.P.).—Under a big load of selling, wheat values tumbled down today, accelerated by reports indicating the best prospect in many years for domestic spring wheat. Besides, Canada's seeding of spring wheat was reported as likely to be finished a week ahead of last year and with acreage uncurtailed. Enough moisture to insure auspicious growth for several weeks was noted throughout practically the entire domestic spring wheat belt, with general rains in United States winter wheat sections as well.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 1⅝c to 2¾c lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed at ¾c to ¾c decline to ⅛c advance. Oats ½c off to ⅛c up and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5c.

Lowest prices of the day in the wheat market came in the late dealings, with July equaling the bottommost previous record this season and December outdoing the record. Adding to discouragement of owners of future delivery contracts were advices that early sown Canadian wheat has already attained a height of 2 inches. Under such circumstances, about the only strength shown by wheat without the dull was for a brief time at the start owing to transient gains which the Liverpool market displayed.

News, however, that millers abroad had withdrawn as purchasers of wheat operated quickly as more than a counterbalance to upturns in Liverpool quotations, especially as export demand today for North American wheat proved slack. Furthermore, sterling exchange was at the lowest point touched since last October, an unpromising sign for any immediate broadening of export business. Word that India is likely to have a smaller harvest than the official forecast has indicated, and that European stocks of native wheat are diminishing, were of no avail to friends of higher prices, and the day ended with the market here at but little above the lowest point reached.

Despite wet weather which may delay corn planting, the corn market sympathized with the increased weakness of wheat. Independent strength that corn prices developed early owing more or less to reports that all the corn in Chicago public elevators is owned by a single industry faded away at the last. Oats also sagged with wheat.

Provisions held about steady, responsive to the action of hog values.

BOND SALES RALLY AS PRICES ADVANCE

FOREIGN GROUP IS DULL

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—Renewed ease in the credit situation and increasing confidence in the prospects for cheap money over a considerable period strengthened the listed bond market today. Trading volume was the largest of the week as inquiry for prime investment issues quickened, and appreciable gains were recorded along a wide front.

The composite price of 30 bonds indicated that the market had regained the ground it lost during the recent interval of stock liquidation and the averages again reached a point not far below their peak for the year.

Stimulus for the advance was provided by a general lowering of interest rates. Time money eased in the longer term accommodations, while call loans, responding to the abundant supply of funds, renewed at 3 per cent for the first time since the abnormal March period. Bankers acceptance rates were pared an eighth of 1 per cent and there was a reduction in commercial paper. Another helpful factor was the recent decrease in new offerings, which have been only nominal this week.

Industrial Group Revives.

Broader interest of the banks, insurance companies and corporations in the market for fixed-interest securities was reflected in the vitality displayed by the best rail and utility bonds. The industrial group, which has been heavy, also showed signs of revival. Gains of 1 and 2 points throughout the investment list were not unusual. The dullest trading was in foreign bonds.

Atchison General 4s, St. Paul Adjustment 5s, Great Northern 7s, M., K., T. 1st 4s, Nickel Plate 6s, Pennsylvania General 4½s, Southern Pacific refunding 4s, Southern Railway general 4s participated in the upward trend in the rail group. Issues closing lower included Pennsylvania 4½s, Frisco general 4s, Cleveland Union Terminal 5s and Erie 5s.

The sensational climb of the day was in the amusement group. Pathe Exchange 7s soared 12 points and finished at 78, or 10 points above the previous closing. Loew's 6s with warrants went up 2 points.

American Natural Gas Gains.

American Natural Gas 6½s with warrants gained 3¼; Lorillard 5½s advanced 2⅝, Transcontinental Oil 6s, ex-rights, rose 2½. Allis Chalmers 5s made a new high at 102½, up 1⅛. Pan-American Petroleum 6s convertible dropped 5⅛ on the sale of one bond, and Cuba Cane 6s and Fisk Rubber 8s sagged more than a point each.

Montana Power 5s, American Telephone 5s and Public Service 4½s improved fractionally in the utility group.

The foreign group was inclined to dullness, but prices generally were irregular at the close.

United States Governments were in moderate demand; moved up 1 to 6 points.

BANK-BANDIT RAIDS SHOW BIG INCREASE

DETECTIVES ARREST 143

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The greatest number of bandit raids on American banking ever recorded in the figures of the protective department of the American Bankers Association were reported to the organization's executive council meeting at Old Point Comfort, Va., yesterday.

Bankers from Washington and all parts of the country heard department officials report that during the first half of the association's current fiscal year, the six months ended February 28, member banks reported for investigation 311 forgery cases, 107 holdup robberies, 16 burglaries, 2 sneak thefts and 8 mortgage swindles.

Although nonmember banks represent less than half the number enrolled in the association, they suffered 86 holdup robberies and 9 burglaries, or but few less than the association's entire membership. In other words, the nonmembers were burglarized or held up once every 89 banks, as compared with 1 burglary or robbery for every 164 member banks.

76 Bandits Convicted.

More important than this comparison, however, is the fact that both member and nonmember banks suffered a greater number of bandit raids during the first six months of the fiscal year than during any similar period in the history of banking. Association detectives caused the arrest of 143 of 236 bank criminals apprehended during the period, and 76 of these have been convicted, in addition to 49 arrested in the previous year.

The report urged on bankers the use of the most up-to-date mechanical alarm systems as a crime preventive, and support of a movement to provide police departments with radio-equipped cruising automobiles for broadcasting alarms.

All officers and directors of the Washington Permanent Building Association were reelected yesterday at the annual meeting of stockholders. They are H. H. Bergmann, president; E. J. Sacks, vice president; C. J. Bergmann, treasurer; Hermann H. Bergmann, secretary.

Permanent Building Directors.

Directors are: John Waldman, Christopher Rammling, John H. Clipper, John Henderson, C. Chester Caywood, Max Walten, Joseph N. Saunders and James R. Ellis.

Vice President William J. Flather, of Riggs National Bank, celebrated his seventy-first birthday yesterday and was the recipient of many flowers and congratulations. On February 4 he completed his fifty-third year of continuous service with the bank.

Twenty-nine papers have been submitted in the essay contest of the District of Columbia Bankers Association for members of Washington Chapter American Institute of Banking, employed by association member banks. Last year but seven essays were presented. Authors of the three winning essays are given trips to the association convention at Asheville, N. C., in June.

Yesterday's session of the Washington Stock Exchange witnessed the heaviest turnover in Capital Traction stock in years, 452 shares trading in 20 transactions at figures ranging from 76¼ to 75. The largest sale was a block of 200.

Curb Review

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—Curb market stocks fluctuated erratically today, working irregularly higher until late in the session, when some of the popular trading shares among the utilities broke sharply in sympathy with a late reaction on the stock market. Trading continued to slacken, with the day's sales only slightly exceeding 1,000,000 shares.

Such issues as American Gas & Electric, American and Foreign Power warrants, Electric Bond & Share, Electric Power & Light warrants, and United Light & Power A loss from 2 to 4 points. Duke Power tumbled 10. Among some of the lightly traded issues, Nevada-California Electric and New England Power rose 8 and 4 points, respectively, to 1930 record levels in a few odd-lot sales.

A long list of industrials and specialties worked higher during most of the day, but gains were curtailed in the late decline. Deere new stock dropped 9 points, more than canceling yesterday's rise. Columbia Pictures shot up nearly 4 points, then lost most of its gain. Anglo Chilean Nitrate was a strong feature, shooting up more than 6 points to within striking distance of its record level, and closing near the top. Pacific Coast Biscuit reached new high ground in response to reports that the long-rumored merger with National Biscuit will be announced shortly.

Zonite dropped to new low ground, reflecting reduction of the dividend.

Oils were irregular. Standard of Ohio gained 4 points, while Cosden lost 5. Humble, Cities Service and Standard of Kentucky eased fractionally. In the investment trust and holding company group, United Founders was heavily bought for a time, selling up about 2 points to 32, but it lost most of its gain before the close. Goldman Sachs lost about 2 points.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Devoe & Raynolds.

B. G.—Is there anything you can tell me about Devoe & Raynolds?

Answer—The company is the largest in the manufacture of pigments, paints and color products. In the fiscal year ended with last November, earnings equaled $4.52 per share of class A stock. These earnings are more than double the present dividend of $2.40 a share per annum. Indications are that this year's income will equal, if not exceed, that of last year. The company is in a strong position financially, and its stock may be called a speculative investment with good long pull prospects.

Bulova Watch.

R. D.—I have some money to invest, but before doing anything I would like some facts on Bulova Watch.

Answer—Bulova may be regarded as a good speculative investment. Estimates place income for 1930 in the neighborhood of $8 a share on the outstanding stock. The current dividend is $3 annually. This would make the stock attractive for investors desiring a long-term commitment. New lines are being constantly added to the company's products, and if present estimates of earnings prove correct, the $3 dividend will be earned more than twice over this year.

Bullard.

D. F.—I have been reading your column steadily and would like an opinion from you regarding stock of the Bullard Co.

Answer—Bullard may be called a good investment for over the long term. The company has a process for metal finishing which is bringing in additional income in the form of royalties. Manufacturing costs have been lowered as a result of this process, and indications are that earnings should be just as good as those for 1929. In that year profits of Bullard stock were equivalent to $3.60 per share as against the present dividend of $1.60 a share per annum. With larger earnings predicted for this year, the stock is in a strong position both from the standpoint of dividends and earnings and appears suitable for long term holdings.

Radio-Keith-Orpheum.

C. D.—Kindly give me your opinion of Radio-Keith-Orpheum. What are the prospects for this company?

Answer—Earnings on the stock of Radio-Keith-Orpheum this year are expected to be in the neighborhood of $4 per share. Recent unofficial reports have been that the management of the company plans to make it the biggest amusement organization in the United States. This gives the stock attractive speculative possibilities, although it can not be called an investment because no dividends are paid at present. One of the reported plans of the management is the installation of moving pictures in practically every home, thus giving the company a colorful outlook.

Continental Baking.

S. G. P.—Would appreciate your giving me some idea of the prospects of Continental Baking.

Answer—In the latter part of April it was stated in usually well-informed quarters that company's report for first fifteen weeks of current fiscal year probably would show net profit equal to between 40 and 50 cents a share on the 291,813 shares of Class A stock, after allowing for dividends for 518,928 shares of $8 preferred for the period. This would compare with net profit of $1,836,734, or $2.18 a share, earned in fifteen weeks ended April 13, 1929. Decline in profits said to be due mainly to a decrease of from 8 to 10 per cent in sales volume during period.

Decline in wheat prices had exerted no substantial effect on company's earnings and company took no inventory loss on that account, since all its flour was "hedged" in accordance with usual practice. In view of current yield of over 9 per cent, preferred stock very well regarded from a speculative investment viewpoint. Other issues, however, as nondividend payers, are not so well thought of, even from a speculative angle.

Cities Service.

Miss R. S.—It looks as though Cities Service is beginning to go down again. Would you advise selling now?

Answer—This column never advises when to either buy or sell any stock. Cities Service is looked upon as a very attractive investment just now, not only on account of present dividends of 30 cents per share annually, plus 6 per cent in stock, but also because of its record-breaking earnings and unusually bright future prospects. The company is constantly expanding along definite lines, which in the ordinary course can not fail to inure to the lasting benefit of stockholders.

Ludlum Steel; Julius Kayser.

H. T.—Will you please define the prospects, as your skilled judgment sees them, of Ludlum Steel and Julius Kayser?

Answer—This column never pretends to forecast market possibilities of any stock. In their present status, Ludlum Steel, paying $2 annual dividends and yielding to the investor approximately 6.9 per cent, and Julius Kayser, paying $4 and returning about 13.3 per cent, both look fairly attractive from a speculative-investment viewpoint. However, earnings of Ludlum Steel have fluctuated widely since 1922, reaching high points in 1923, 1925 and 1928. Figures for 1929, which showed $20.43 earned a preferred share and $3.69 per common share, included those of the Atlas Steel Corporation, and therefore are not comparable with previous years. Present outlook for steel industry is a little bit uncertain in view of the price cutting tendency. What effect this may have upon Ludlum Steel is, of course, problematical.

Julius Kayser reported for six months ended December 31, 1929, net equivalent to $2.73 a common share. This represents a decline of 15 per cent from the $3.70 a common share earned in the like period of 1929. Company lately announced a cut of $1 a dozen in two of its hosiery numbers. What effect this may have on earnings remains to be seen. In any event, the present dividend requirement of $4 a year is being more than earned, according to the last six months' statement.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—An early advance in cotton, on reports of relatively steady Liverpool cables, was followed by reactions today under near-month liquidation and scattered selling of new crop months. May sold off to 16.23, or about 30 points from the high level of the morning, and closed at 16.25, compared with 16.38 at the close of the previous day. Later deliveries were relatively steadier, but the new October reacted from 14.41 to 14.26 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 13 points on old crop positions, while the new crop was 1 to 14 points net higher.

The opening was steady at an advance of 6 to 11 points, with the active months selling about 15 to 18 points net higher during the early trading. July sold up to 16.66 on the initial demand, while new December contracts advanced to 14.45, and there was some buying of new crop positions on fears that the Western belt was getting a little too much rain and that more rain was needed in Central and Eastern belt sections. Some rain was reported in the Central belt overnight, however, while the forecast was for showers in the East, and as soon as the early buying had been supplied prices turned easier.

The decline which followed was accompanied by reports that several thousand bales of cotton were being shipped back here from Havre, presumably for delivery this month, and there was considerable scattering of near-month liquidation, also undoing of old straddles between near and late months. The latter held relatively firm, with the new December selling at 14.49, or 19 points net higher during the early afternoon, but offerings increased later, with July selling off to 16.32 and December to 14.33. Closing quotations were within 2 or 3 points of the lowest on most positions, with May 11 points under July and 199 points over the new October.

Stocks of certificated cotton at designated delivery points are increasing, amounting to 365,089 bales, according to today's report, and further additions are expected before the end of the month. New Orleans was credited with selling July here during the afternoon and an early July premium of about 200 points over old October was reduced to 184 points at the close. Much of the day's business was attributed to liquidation of trailing long accounts and the undoing of straddles between old and new crop positions.

Liverpool reported continental buying and covering in that market.

Exports today, 13,303, making 6,341,693 so far this season. Port receipts, 5,441. United States port stocks, 1,636,186.

COUNCIL WILL HEAR ROSEMONT PROTEST

EAGLES ELECT TRAVERS

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

A resolution protesting against proposed changes of street names in the Rosemont section, which has been adopted by the Northwest Citizens Association, will be presented to the city council today by Harry F. Kennedy, president of the association, and a committee, the other members of which are George E. Warfield, J. Fred Birrell, William A. Moore, and C. Page Waller. These will be heard by the council, after which it is understood the petition will be considered in executive session.

The petition requests the city council not to change the name of any street in the newly acquired territory except where there are duplications, and then to follow the order of seniority of annexation, and where any street has more than one name, that seniority be also followed.

The committee appointed by the council several months ago to consider changes in street names recommended that the Rosemont streets, beginning with Cedar street and including all streets running east and west, be given numbers. The residents of Rosemont, immediately after the announcement of the recommendations of the street committee, protested, on the ground that such action might have a tendency to affect adversely the value of their property.

Commander Howard L. Arnold, of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, will be in charge of the local arrangements for the annual pilgrimage of the legion, department of Virginia, to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington on Sunday next.

The program of exercises will begin at 2:15 o'clock, in charge of the national pilgrimage committee. Col. B. M. Roszel, commander of the department of Virginia, will head the motorcade leaving Alexandria at 1:30 o'clock for the trip.

Gadsby's Tavern will be open to visitors that day and a committee from the local American Legion Auxiliary will act as guides.

Travers and Charles Martin, trustees, and Joseph Fenwick, conductor. The newly elected officers will be installed in June by an official from the grand lodge at Kansas City, Mo.

A ladies' auxiliary to the local aerie will be organized in June, with a charter membership of 75.

L. B. Clark, a soldier stationed at Fort Humphreys, reported to the local police yesterday that he was picked up early yesterday morning by three men in an automobile with the understanding that he was to be taken to Fort Humphreys. The American Red Cross will confer certificates of graduation in first aid on a class of 18 firemen, members of Truck Company No. 2, of Potomac, Saturday night at the Potomac Engine House. The presentation will be made by Commander Longfellow, of the Red Cross headquarters in Washington. $21,500 IS RAISED BY CHAMBER AIDS

Group in Alexandria Lacks $3,500 of Reaching $25,000 Goal.

CAPITAL MEN ALSO HELP

The Alexandria Chamber of Commerce is within $3,500 of its 1930 goal of raising $25,000 a year for three years, for the purpose of industrial development of the city. A meeting was held yesterday in Gadsby's Tavern, at which 75 men who have been actively engaged in soliciting funds for the chamber's drive met and reported on the progress made in Alexandria and Washington. One feature brought out at this meeting was that a ready response has been received from chain organizations which have never before been affiliated with the Chamber of Commerce.

Robert S. Barrett, general chairman of the Alexandria Forward Movement, in addressing the solicitors, stated that the citizens of Alexandria realize the necessity of subscribing the entire amount of $25,000 annually for industrial progress, and that no smaller amount will satisfy the needs.

The Chamber of Commerce is determined to go on until this goal has been attained, and Washington business men have indicated their interest in the program and are pointing out that Alexandria's development is in reality the development of Washington.

The Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, he said, is calling upon the Washington business men for aid only after it has demonstrated that Alexandrians believe in the project, and as proof have subscribed more money to this program than was ever before subscribed in Alexandria for a civic enterprise. Mr. Barrett declared that the organization would raise all funds necessary for the industrial development of this area before the close of the campaign.

Plans Forwarded On Pike Widening

Frederick Supervisors Offer Aid in Winchester-Staunton Project.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., May 7.—The Board of Supervisors of Frederick County is so much interested in the widening of the Shenandoah Valley pike from here to Staunton that its members today volunteered to interview property owners between Winchester and Middletown, near the Shenandoah County line, relative to signing agreements to deed without charge certain strips of land needed for making the historic roadway practically twice its present width.

They appointed themselves individual committees after plans of the State Highway Commission had been laid before them by W. A. Royal, an engineer of the commission, and Andrew Bell, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce. Similar agreements will be sought along the Martinsburg pike between here and the West Virginia line.

The roadway will not be widened in towns or villages, except where conditions lend themselves to widening without removing buildings. Mr. Royal said most of the land owner between here and Staunton had indicated their desire to give the State the land necessary for widening the pike, and that only in a few instances had condemnation proceedings become necessary.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA inveigled me into a shopping tour, to carry her bundles. While I was waiting for her outside one of the big stores a fellow sold me a book. Just as I was about to open it, Luella came out.

"Let's go home," she said, and off we trod. As we got out of the car, at the Old Manse, the book slipped and fell on the driveway.

"Oh, you've got a book," said Luella, as I fumbled for it, trying to hide the title.

"Yep," I admitted. "I've got a book."

"Where'd you get it?" she asked, casual-like, though I knew she was dying from curiosity. "You didn't have time to go to the library——"

* * * *

"BOUGHT it——"

"You bought a book—with all we've got already?"

"Well," I shied, trying to steer her off the subject, "another I'll book won't do us any harm——"

"That depends," she said, with conviction.

"Whatd'ye mean?"

"What kind of a book is it?"

She saw the sheepish look on my face.

"It's a book on psychology," I admitted, fishing for the doorkey—and dropping the book again right at her feet. We both dove for it at the same time, bundles falling all over the place.

SHE gave me a forlorn look as I beat her to it: "Are you trying to hide something from me?" she snapped, while I pressed the recovered tome tightly to my breast.

For the life of me I couldn't open the door, my hands rattling like a cock-tail shaker. At last, we got inside the house.

"Where is that book" asked Luella.

"What book?"

"You know what book!"

"Oh," I said, trying to shove it behind the book case, "This book?"

"Let's see it," she said, and before I could switch volumes on her she had me dead to rights.

* * * *

SHE stood for a moment, pondering the title: "What Men Know About Women?"

"So that's the kind of trash you buy, is it?"

"'Twould seem so," I admitted.

"How much did it cost you?"

"A buck——"

She laughed: "I could have told you all this—for nothing," she said, "and that's just about what men know about women—Nothing!"

As she stood there surveying me, she opened the pages of the book They were blank. Nothing on them.

"You see?" said Luella.

I saw red spots before my eyes, and some day I hope to see the bird that sold me that book.

BOARD MAKES PLANS FOR REASSESSMENT

Selection of Equalization Committee Is Asked of Fairfax Court.

FLAGPOLE OFFER MADE

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

By a unanimous vote, the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors at its regular monthly meeting yesterday, authorized a general reassessment of real estate in Fairfax County for the year of 1930, to be made in accordance with chapter 411 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Virginia. The board requests the circuit court of the county to appoint three members to the equalization board and for them to make the general assessment. Their salary was fixed by the board as a per diem compensation for each of the members, at $15 a day, not to exceed 170 days. The members of the equalization board were authorized to employ the necessary clerical help not to exceed $1,500. The supervisors also decided that they were without power to recommend any persons to the court for appointment to these positions.

A delegation from the Farmers and Mechanics Council, Order of Fraternal Americans, of Andrew Chapel, of which B. B. Iden was spokesman, appeared before the board and offered to donate a large American flag for the county courthouse. Members of the board explained that last year Mrs. Mary M. North, of Herndon, offered to give the county a flag and it was accepted and on February 6, 1929, County Engineer F. N. Larkin, after the new clerk's office building had been completed, was told to advertise for bids for a metal flagpole to be erected on the courthouse lawn. The bids for the pole were received at the meeting of the board on March 6, 1929, but they were laid on the table because they were too high.

It has also been stated by many that Fairfax Courthouse is one of the most appropriate places for the American flag to be flown, as it is the county seat of the county in which George Washington's home is located. The wills of George and Martha Washington and many other historical documents are housed within the building's walls. Commonwealth Attorney Wilson M. Farr stated that under the present budget no funds are available for a flagpole and that all county work will have to be curtailed until the end of the fiscal year. County Engineer Larkin was instructed to prepare estimates of what it would cost to erect the pole and he is to report to the next meeting.

Commonwealth Attorney Farr was authorized to defend the suit brought against the supervisors by Thomas P. Johnson and others. The suit asks the court to restrain the supervisors and county engineer from doing work on the roads in private subdivisions.

Mrs. Jennie S. Landon wrote in regard to a deed for the parking space at the entrance of Mount Vernon estate. She stated that when she deeded the property to the board several years ago she felt that the county would take care of the parking space and improve it. This it did not do, she said, and she felt that in view of the Federal Government's wanting this land for the plaza of the George Washington memorial highway, her original intents and purposes would be better served if the board would convey it to the United States. She has advised the United States Bureau of Roads that she would join with the supervisors in deeding the land. Chairman W. F. P. Reid, of the board, appointed a special committee to investigate the matter.

The county health officer, Dr. Robert E. Feagans, recommended that screens be placed on the windows of the offices of the courthouse building. Dr. F. W. Huddleson also made a special request for screens and awnings for his office. The county engineer was authorized to make screens for the entire building.

The county clerk was instructed to draw up a resolution of thanks to the several persons and Fairfax Garden Club for the boxwood bushes which they placed at the entrance of the courthouse office building and for their work in beautifying the grounds.

There was considerable discussion as to the advisability of selling the old county almshouse, on the Little River pike just west of Fairfax. Most of the members were of the opinion that the building and grounds should be sold.

A petition was received from the residents of Cameron Run asking the board to have the road through the settlement surfaced without cost to the property owners. The county engineer suggested that in accordance with the board's former policy the property owners would first have to improve the streets in front of their homes. The petition was referred to the engineer for further investigation.

The report of the county engineer shows that during the last month $885.06 was spent on the roads in Centerville District; $324.67 in Dranesville District; $1,657.49 in Falls Church District; $772.34 in Lee District; $94.20 in Mount Vernon District and $1,606.23 in Providence District. The board authorized the payment of $2,750 as the second and third payments of the county's appropriation for the support of the county health unit, this amount to be paid to the State Health Department in Richmond. The amount of insurance on the various county buildings was ordered changed as follows: Old clerk's office building, $4,000; courthouse, $9,750; furniture and fixtures in courthouse, $250; county jail, $4,000, and the old alms house, $5,000.

The petition of the residents of Merrifield in regard to the naming of the road from there to Vienna, was answered by the board that, as this road was known on the official county map as Hunters Lane, they were of the opinion that it should remain under that name.

County Clerk F. W. Richardson yesterday received the balance of the official census of Fairfax County. The reports for Falls Church, Mount Vernon and Providence Districts were received last week. The report for Dranesville District, including the Towns of Herndon and Wiehle, shows a population of 3,723, as compared to 3,885 in the 1920 census. Two hundred and thirty-five farms are in this district.

Lee District, including the District of Columbia penal institutions, which have 1,288 persons, has a population of 2,922, compared with 2,554 in 1920. One hundred and twenty farms are located in this district.

Centerville, including the town of Clifton, has a population of 2,153, as compared with 2,137 in 1920. Two hundred and twenty-six farms were found in this district. These figures make the total population of the county 25,566 persons, as compared with 21,943 in 1920; 1,332 farms are located in the county. This is an increase of 3,624 persons in the ten years.

The report of the county road police for last month shows that Capt. Haywood J. Durrer made three arrests, fines totaled $48 and fees $18; Traffic Policeman Lewis L. Finks made 21 arrests, fines $230 and fees, $19; Traffic Policeman A. W. Mills made fifteen arrests, fines $112.50 and fees, $13; Traffic Policeman Carl R. McIntosh made ten arrests, fines $110 and fees $7. The fees were turned over to the county treasurer to be deposited in the county police fund as required by law.

The Mount Vernon Ladies Association will convene today at Mount Vernon and remain in session for about ten days. Next Sunday, in accordance with its annual custom, the association will attend the service at historic Pohick Church. The new quarters will be occupied this year for the first time. The annual report of the superintendent of Mount Vernon will be read and the budget for next year prepared.

Today's session was occupied principally in hearing addresses by different delegates. Mrs. C. R. Waters gave an address on the evolution of the missionary work. Mrs. Waters was followed by Frank Preston, secretary of the Children's Home Society, who gave an account of its work among the children of Virginia and showed the great need of taking care of dependent children. Mrs. Mintree Folkes made her report as editor of the page in the Christian Advocate, and at its close she submitted her resignation.

The report of the treasurer showed that $1,383,354.66 was raised by the different auxiliaries last year. The work of the Ferum Mountain School was presented by the superintendent, the Rev. B. W. Breckham. Mrs. Barrow made an address on the Ferum School and its work, and declared that the motto should be "The School Belongs to the Conference, But the Children Belong to Us All." Live Stock Dealer Acquitted by Jury

Rising Sun Man Freed on Chargse Growing Out of Cow Deal.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., May 7.—Harry H. Smith, Rising Sun, Md., live stock dealer, was acquitted of a charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses by a Rockingham Circuit Court jury here today which rendered a verdict that Smith did not practice fraud in purchasing a carload of milk cows from Leon Hirsch and Sam F. Toppin, although the shipment has not yet been paid for.

Smith gave two checks, one for $2,000 and the other for $1,112, in payment for the cows at the time of the purchase here, but the checks were returned by the Cecil National Bank, of Port Deposit, Md., because Smith's account had insufficient funds. Smith admitted on the stand that he still owes Hirsch and Toppin for the cows, but that business reverses have prevented him from making good the checks.

Smith was arrested last December 15 and spent 53 days in jail before being released on bail. He was first indicted for violation of the Virginia "bad check" law, but these indictments were quashed.

Further brilliance will be injected by the "Let's Go" luncheon on Friday, May 9, dedicated to the official State magazine, now published in Lynchburg, Miss Mary Paul Wallace editor, the speaker at which will be Maj.
